National Science Foundation Curriculum Development and Implementation for Pre-college Science Education ,1975 The Role of Public Policy in K-12 Science Education George E. DeBoer,2011-01-01 The goal of this volume of Research in Science Education is to examine the relationship between science education policy and practice and the special role that science education researchers play in influencing policy It has been suggested that the science education research community is isolated from the political process pays little attention to policy matters and has little influence on policy But to influence policy it is important to understand how policy is made and how it is implemented This volume sheds light on the intersection between policy and practice through both theoretical discussions and practical examples This book was written primarily about science education policy development in the context of the highly decentralized educational system of the United States But because policy development is fundamentally a social activity involving knowledge values and personal and community interests there are similarities in how education policy gets enacted and implemented around the world This volume is meant to be useful to science education researchers and to practitioners such as teachers and administrators because it provides information about which aspects of the science education enterprise are affected by state local and national policies It also provides helpful information for researchers and practitioners who wonder how they might influence policy In particular it points out how the values of people who are affected by policy initiatives are critical to the implementation of those policies

This book examines a ubiquitous yet under researched area of language education i.e language teachers use of curriculum materials. It particularly focuses on EFL teachers use of prescribed curriculum materials in higher education in Mainland China and presents a qualitative multi case study involving four Chinese EFL teachers and eight students (two students from each teacher's class) at one university in Mainland China. Drawing on data from pre lesson and post lesson interviews with the teachers, lesson observations and documents in three consecutive semesters at the target university, the book delineates the processes of materials use in classroom settings. It also identifies four domains of factors that influenced the enactment of curriculum materials. Most importantly, by adopting Vygotsky's 1978 mediation theory and Remillard's 2005 participatory perspective, the book constructs a curriculum enactment mediation model to reveal the complex and mediated relations among teachers, learners, curriculum materials and context. It also recommends practical implications for materials developers, teacher educators, administrators and policymakers.
