Reception Of Ossian In Europe:

The Reception of Ossian in Europe Howard Gaskill, 2004-12-01 James Macpherson's Poems of Ossian said to be translations from the Gaelic of a third century bard caused a sensation on their first appearance in the early 1760s. Contrary to the impression often conveyed in literary histories enthusiasm for the poetry of the Homer of the North cannot be dismissed as a short lived fad for its appeal lasted a century or more both at home and abroad. There is hardly a major Romantic poet on whom it failed to make a significant impact. In the words of Sir Walter Scott it succeeded in giving a new tone to poetry throughout all Europe and its influence was ubiquitous from Poland to Portugal from Paris to Prague. The essays brought together here consider the reception of Ossian in England Scotland Wales and Ireland as well as in a wide range of European countries. In some the focus is on individual writers for instance Goethe Schiller Chateaubriand Espronceda in others there is a broader sweep and a survey of reception in a national literary culture is offered for instance Hungary Russia Sweden. One of the two essays on Ossian in Italy at last gives Macpherson's influential epigone John Smith his due. Consideration is also given to Ossian's significance for the rise of historicism and to non literary forms of reception in music and art. Building upon wide ranging scholarship this interdisciplinary study seeks to analyse the place of folklore in the long nineteenth century throughout Europe as an important symbol in the growth and development of nations and nationalism and in particular to see how combining perspectives from History Literary Studies Music and Architecture can help provide enhanced and refreshing perspectives on the complex process of nation building. With a range of detailed case studies drawing upon archival literary visual and musical sources as well as material culture it raises questions about individual countries but also about links and similarities across Europe

The Czech Manuscripts David L. Cooper, 2023-10-15 The Czech Manuscripts is dedicated to one of the most important literary forgeries on the model of Macpherson's Ossianic poetry The Queen's Court and Green Mountain Manuscripts discovered in 1817 and 1818 went on to play an outsized role in the Czech National Revival functioning as founding texts of the national mythology and serving as sacred works in the long period when they were considered genuine A successful literary forgery tells a lot about what a culture wants and needs at a particular moment One fascinating aspect of this story is how a successful fake was able to function in an integral way as part of the Czech cultural revival of the nineteenth century both because it played to expectations and nationalist values and because it met real cultural needs in many ways better than genuine historical literary works and artefacts Also fascinating is the vainglorious Vclav Hanka a prolific and dedicated forger who was likely the center of the conspiratorial ring that created the manuscripts and who went on as the librarian of the Czech National Museum to alter a number of others David Cooper analyzes what made the Manuscripts a convincing imitation of their Serbian and Russian models He looks at how translation shaped their composition and at the benefit of examining them as pseudotranslations and investigates the quasi religious rituals and commemorative practices that developed around them The Czech Manuscripts brings the Czech experience into the broader developments of European history

Barlow, 2023 Modern Irish and Scottish Literature Connections Contrasts Celticisms explores the ways Irish and Scottish literatures have influenced each other from the 1760s onwards. Although an early form of Celticism disappeared with the demise of the Celtic Revivals of Ireland and Scotland, the Celtic world and the Celtic temperament remained key themes in central texts of Irish and Scottish literature well into the twentieth century. Richard Barlow examines the emergence, development, and transformation of Celticism within Irish and Scottish writing and identifies key connections between modern Irish and Scottish authors and texts. By reading works from figures such as James Macpherson, Walter Scott, Sydney Owenson, Augusta Gregory, W. B. Yeats, Fiona Macleod, James Joyce, Samuel Beckett, Hugh MacDiarmid, Sorley MacLean, and Seamus Heaney in their political and cultural contexts, Barlow provides a new account of the characteristics and phases of literary Celticism within Romanticism, Modernism, and beyond.

Counterfactual Romanticism Damian Walford Davies, 2019-09-18. Innovatively extending counterfactual thought experiments from history and the social sciences to literary historiography, criticism, and theory, Counterfactual Romanticism reveals the ways in which the shapes of Romanticism are conditioned by that which did not come to pass. Exploring various modalities of counterfactual speculation and inquiry across a range of Romantic period authors, genres, and concerns, this collection offers a radical new purchase on literary history on the relationship between history and fiction and on our historicist methods to date and thus on the Romanticisms we think we have inherited. Counterfactual Romanticism provides a ground-breaking method of re-reading literary pasts and our own reading presents in the process. Literary production, texts, and reading practices are unfossilised and defamiliarised.

Feminine Enlightenment DeLucia, JoEllen DeLucia, 2015-02-11. Revises established understandings of British women writers' contributions to Enlightenment narratives of social and historical progress. Drawing on original archival research, A Feminine Enlightenment argues that women writers shaped Enlightenment conversations regarding the role of sentiment and gender in the civilizing process. By reading women's literature alongside history and philosophy and moving between the eighteenth century and Romantic era, JoEllen DeLucia challenges conventional historical and generic boundaries. Beginning with Adam Smith's Theory of Moral Sentiments (1759), she tracks discussions of the women's progress from the rarified atmosphere of mid-eighteenth-century Bluestocking salons and the masculine domain of the Scottish university system to the popular Minerva Press novels of the early nineteenth century. Ultimately, this study positions feminine genres such as the Gothic romance and Bluestocking poetry usually seen as outliers in a masculine Age of Reason as essential to understanding emotion's role in Enlightenment narratives of progress. The effect of this study is twofold: to show how developments in women's literature reflected and engaged with Enlightenment discussions of emotion, sentiment, and commercial and imperial expansion; and to provide new literary and historical contexts for contemporary conversations that continue to use the women's progress to assign cultures and societies around the globe a place in universalizing schemas of development.

Key Features: Establishes the centrality of gender to Enlightenment discussions of social and historical development. Uncovers evidence of women writers participation in the Scottish Enlightenment's theorization of sentiment and historical progress Provides literary and historical background for ongoing discussions of the history of emotion and the study of affect
