Lewis, 1992 The ability of an organism to combat infection by foreign particles and microbial pathogens is essential for its survival and evolutionary success Such efforts at immunity can take two forms A considerable number of works have been published which focus on the central role of antigen recognition and antibody structure and function in the host response to infection This volume however discusses the recent shift in focus towards the natural or innate immune system which consists of various cell types and factors These cells and factors can take part in immune responses without prior sensitization and have important modulatory effects on later specific responses This work reviews the biology and function of the natural killer cell covering such topics as the molecular basis of natural killer cell function and its role in viral infection tumor biology and transplantation Graduate students and researchers in immunology cell biology and medicine will find this work a valuable resource on current research in this exciting field

Immunobiology of Natural Killer Cell Receptors Eric Vivier, Marco

Colonna, 2005-12-20 Natural Killer NK cells are large granular lymphocytes of the innate immune system They are widespread throughout the body being present in both lymphoid organs and non lymphoid peripheral tissues NK cells are involved in direct innate immune reactions against viruses bacteria parasites and other triggers of pathology such as malignant transformation all of which cause stress in affected cells Importantly NK cells also link the innate and adaptive immune responses contributing to the initiation of adaptive immune responses and executing adaptive responses using the CD16 FcγRIIIA immunoglobulin Fc receptor Such responses are mediated through two major effector functions the direct cytolysis of target cells and the production of cytokines and chemokines The authors focus here on the nature of recognition events by NK cells and address how these events are integrated to trigger these distinct and graded effector functions
