Nature Borders:

Cartographies of Nature Maano Ramutsindela, 2014-06-19 The ascendancy of border studies in the last two decades or so and the burgeoning work on nature and society neither drew attention to ecological theories of borders nor capitalised on nature as a useful avenue through which border research could be advanced This volume fills this void by engaging with the following key questions What insights can be drawn from species borders to broaden understandings of bordering What sorts of borders are engendered by various types of conservation areas What border stories does each of these areas tell us What do conservation related borders teach us about multiple lines that divide societies Answers to these questions help researchers understand a typology of nature related borders The primary objectives of this volume are twofold The first objective is to expand and deepen the links between nature conservation and border studies by bringing species borders into conversation with border studies while at the same time paying attention to diverse conservation areas and conservation practices The second objective is to highlight forms of borders associated with various types of conservation areas and the protection of certain types of natural resources The manner in which nature conservation produces borders and the forms those borders take has the potential to enrich the conceptualisation of borders The point of departure in this volume is that conservation practices produce feedback loops on social reality Authors in the volume variously show that concerns with environmental protection and management offer possibilities for exploring and even disrupting borders within society and those between society and nature Conservation areas in particular are crucial for a meaningful analysis of nature's borders and the discourses and narratives related to them and how such discourses influence conservation practice This volume is an invaluable resource for research and upper level courses on border studies political ecology conservation and biodiversity management and environmental change and social impact

The Nature of Borders Lissa K. Wadewitz, 2012-09-10 Winner of the 2014 Albert Corey Prize from the American Historical Association Winner of the 2013 Hal Rothman Award from the Western History Association Winner of the 2013 John Lyman Book Award in the Naval and Maritime Science and Technology category from the North American Society for Oceanic History For centuries borders have been central to salmon management customs on the Salish Sea but how those borders were drawn has had very different effects on the Northwest salmon fishery Native peoples who fished the Salish Sea which includes Puget Sound in Washington State the Strait of Georgia in British Columbia and the Strait of Juan de Fuca drew social and cultural borders around salmon fishing locations and found ways to administer the resource in a sustainable way Nineteenth century Euro Americans who drew the Anglo American border along the forty ninth parallel took a very different approach and ignored the salmon's patterns and life cycle As the canned salmon industry grew and more people moved into the region class and ethnic relations changed Soon illegal fishing broken contracts and fish piracy were endemic conditions that contributed to rampant overfishing social tensions and international mistrust The Nature of Borders is about the ecological effects of imposing cultural and political borders on this critical West Coast salmon fishery This transnational history provides an understanding of the modern Pacific salmon crisis and is particularly instructive as salmon conservation practices increasingly approximate those of the pre contact Native past The Nature of Borders reorients borderlands studies toward the Canada U S border and also provides a new view of how borders influenced fishing practices and related management efforts over time Watch the book trailer <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7ffLPgtCYHA> feature channel_video_title

Physical and Symbolic Borders and Boundaries and How They Unfold in Space Basak Tanulku, Simone Pekelsma, 2024-03-05 This book critically examines how borders and boundaries physical and symbolic unfold in different geographies and spaces It aims to understand why they exist and how they are constructed deconstructed and reconstructed The book explores why certain borders boundaries persist while others are removed and new ones are erected It does not focus on one form of border boundary or geographic location It shifts its attention to different geographies borders and boundaries It also focuses on intersections between them and how they complete each other The book provides case studies from the past and present allowing readers to connect subjects periods and geographies The chapters address classical subjects such as nation states and tackle novel questions such as ownership against access that is of urban infrastructures COVID 19 and lockdowns and the divides within digital worlds The book benefits from visual essays that complement the theoretical and empirical chapters showing the complexity of the phenomenon in a simple and effective way The book will be of interest to academics researchers and students working in the fields of urban and rural studies urban sociology cities and communities urban and regional planning urban anthropology political sciences and migration studies human geography cultural geography urban anthropology and visual arts

Making Sense of Nature Noel Castree, 2013-08-15 We listen to a cacophony of voices instructing us how to think and feel about nature including our own bodies The news media wildlife documentaries science magazines and environmental NGOs are among those clamouring for our attention But are we empowered by all this knowledge or is our dependence on various communities allowing our thoughts sentiments and activities to be unduly governed by others Making Sense of Nature shows that what we call nature is made sense of for us in ways that make it central to social order social change and social dissent By utilising insights and extended examples from anthropology cultural studies human geography philosophy politics sociology science studies this interdisciplinary text asks whether we can better make sense of nature for ourselves and thus participate more meaningfully in momentous decisions about the future of life human and non human on the planet This book shows how nature can be made sense of without presuming its naturalness The challenge is not so much to rid ourselves of the idea of nature and its collateral concepts such as genes but instead we need to be more alert to how why and with what effects ideas about nature get fashioned and deployed in specific situations Among other things the book deals with science and scientists the mass media and journalists ecotourism literature and cinema environmentalists advertising and big business This innovative text contains numerous case studies and examples from daily life to put theory and subject matter into context as well as study tasks a glossary and suggested further reading The case studies cover a range of topics range from forestry in Canada and Guinea to bestiality in Washington State to how human genetics is reported in Western newspapers to participatory science experiments in the UK Making Sense of Nature will empower readers from a wide range of fields across the social sciences humanities and physical sciences Borderlands Emmanuel Brunet-Jailly, 2007-05-05

Border security has been high on public policy agendas in Europe and North America since the September 11 2001 attacks on the World Trade Centre in New York City and on the headquarters of the American military in Washington DC Governments are now confronted with managing secure borders a policy objective that in this era of increased free trade and globalization must compete with intense cross border flows of people and goods Border security policies must enable security personnel to identify or filter out dangerous individuals and substances from among the millions of travelers and tons of goods that cross borders daily particularly in large cross border urban regions This book addresses this gap between security needs and an understanding of borders and borderlands Specifically the chapters in this volume ask policy makers to recognize that two fundamental elements define borders and borderlands first human activities the agency and agent power of individual ties and forces spanning a border and second the broader social processes that frame individual action such as market forces government activities law regulations and policies and the regional culture and politics of a borderland Borders emerge as the historically and geographically variable expression of human ties exercised within social structures of varying force and influence and it is the interplay and interdependence between people s incentives to act and the surrounding structures i e constructed social processes that contain and constrain individual action that determine the effectiveness of border security policies This book argues that the nature of borders is to be porous which is a problem for security policy makers It shows that when for economic cultural or political reasons human activities increase across a border and borderland governments need to increase cooperation and collaboration with regard to security policies if only to avoid implementing mismatched security policies Published in English Workers without Borders Ines Wagner, 2018-11-15

How the European Union handles posted workers is a growing issue for a region with borders that really are just lines on a map A 2008 story dissected in Ines Wagner s Workers without Borders about the troubling working conditions of migrant meat and construction workers exposed a distressing dichotomy how could a country with such strong employers associations and trade unions allow for the establishment and maintenance of such a precarious labor market segment Wagner introduces an overlooked piece of the puzzle re regulatory politics at the workplace level She interrogates the position of the posted worker in contemporary European labour markets and the implications of and regulations for this position in industrial relations social policy and justice in Europe Workers without Borders concentrates on how local actors implement European rules and opportunities to analyze the balance of power induced by the EU around policy issues Wagner examines the particularities of posted worker dynamics at the workplace level in German meatpacking facilities and on construction sites to reveal the problems and promises of European Union governance as regulating social justice Using a bottom up approach through in depth interviews with posted migrant workers and administrators involved in the posting process Workers without Borders shows that strong labor market regulation via independent collective bargaining institutions at the workplace level is crucial to effective labor rights in marginal workplaces Wagner identifies structures of access and denial to labor rights for temporary intra EU migrant workers and the problems contained within this system for the EU more broadly We Don't Get It! Frank J. Regan, 2005 Border Identities Thomas M. Wilson, Hastings Donnan, 1998-01-22 This book offers fresh insights into the complex and various ways in which international frontiers influence cultural identities Ten anthropological case studies describe specific international borders in Europe Asia Africa and North America and bring out the importance of boundary politics and the diverse forms that it may take As a contribution to the wider theoretical debates about nationalism transnationalism and globalization it will interest to students and scholars in anthropology political science international studies and modern history Interspecies Politics Rafi Youatt, 2020-02-25 Politics with the environment More Borderlines: 30 Reproducible Borders Dianne Draz, 1998
