differences and globally operating insurgents fundamentally changed the nature of war in the last decade Interpretations of war as driven by politics and state rationale formulated most importantly by the 19th century practitioner Carl von Clausewitz have received strong criticism Political explanations have been said to fall short in explaining conflicts in the Balkans Africa Asia and the attacks of 11 September 2001 in the United States This book re evaluates these criticisms not only by scrutinising Clausewitz s arguments and their applicability but also by a careful reading of the criticism itself In doing so it presents empirical evidence on the basis of several case studies addressing various aspects of modern war such as the actors conduct and purposes of war

South Asia's Nuclear Security Bhumitra Chakma,2014-12-17 South Asia is often viewed as a potential nuclear flashpoint and a probable source of nuclear terrorism But how valid are such perceptions This book seeks to address this question and assesses the region s nuclear security from two principal standpoints First it evaluates the robustness of the Indo Pakistani mutual deterrence by analysing the strength and weaknesses of the competing arguments regarding the issue It also analyses the causes and consequences of nuclear arms race between India and Pakistan the nature of deterrence structure in the region and the challenges of confidence building and arms control between the two countries in order to assess the robustness of South Asia s nuclear deterrence Second it assesses the safety and security of the nuclear assets and nuclear infrastructure of India and Pakistan The author holds that the debate on South Asia s nuclear security is largely misplaced because the optimists tend to overemphasise the stabilising effects of nuclear weapons and the pessimists are too alarmists It is argued that while the risks of nuclear weapons are significant it is unlikely that India and Pakistan will give up their nuclear arsenals in the foreseeable future Therefore what needs to happen is that while nuclear elimination should be the long term goal in the interim years the two countries need to pursue minimum deterrence policies to reduce the likelihood of deterrence failure and the possibility of obtaining fissile materials by non state actors

Security in 21st Century Europe Andrew Cottey, 2025-05-01 The nature of security in Europe has been transformed in recent years Security in 21st Century Europe argues that the defining feature of contemporary European security is the existence of a security community underpinned by the twin institutions of the EU and NATO but that today the European security community NATO and the EU face a growing array of external challenges and their ability to respond to those challenges is increasingly being called into question Offering a systematic assessment of security in contemporary Europe this third edition examines the changing character of European security and assesses the extent of the threats posed by recent challenges as well as the policy dilemmas involved in responding to these challenges It explores Europe's engagement with core thematic issues in European security including military intervention nuclear weapons terrorism and non military security Providing both a substantive contribution to academic thinking on European security and a overview of debates on contemporary European security this new edition offers 3 new chapters on migration climate change and cybersecurity Coverage of all recent major developments related to European security including the Syrian civil war and the regional destabilization arising from it Russia Ukraine crisis the rise of populism the migration crisis the acceleration of China's rise Security in 21st Century Europe combines theory and detailed empirical analysis exploring both how different theoretical perspectives can help us think about European security and concrete empirical developments in European security policies and institutions This text is the perfect companion for advanced undergraduate and Master's level courses on European security whether within courses in Security studies European studies or International Relations
