Voegtle,Marguerite G. Lodico,2005-01-10 The uniqueness of Child and Adolescent Life Stories lies in the multiple perspectives drawn from youth their parents and their teachers These perspectives provide a range of lenses through which a student or beginning teacher may view child and adolescent development The complex processes of development occur within a social context and therefore a professional teacher administrator or school psychologist will need to be able to view developmental stages from youths perspectives as well as from their various social settings Whiteness Chris J. Cuomo,Kim Q. Hall,1999 Written in an engaging narrative style these philosophical investigations undermine racist hierarchies along with false natualistic conceptions of the meanings of race and universalistic understandings of gender by considering whiteness as it shapes and is infused by gender class sexuality and culture Central to this project are questions about how it is that culture and the state create such a wide range of different people who understand themselves as white The essays collected here discuss how one learns to be a good white Southern woman what it means to pass as white and whether there really is a dilemma that accompanies white privilege

Being Black in America's Schools Brian Rashad Fuller, 2025-07-29 For readers of The Knowledge Gap, Race to the Bottom, and The Inequality Machine, education and equity strategist Brian Rashad Fuller sheds a stark light on America's public schools, the miseducation of students of color, and the action required to make tangible changes and reforms to a failing and racialized educational system. With a foreword from Harriet Tubman's great-grand-nephew, Abdul Tubman, in a polarizing and racially divided America, what do children of color learn about themselves before they even go to school? How do they see themselves, and is that image only exacerbated by spending twelve years in a public education system that perpetuates negative stereotypes Brian Rashad Fuller personally knows that the impact of low expectations can be devastating as proved by the school to prison pipeline that so many students have experienced He aims to make a difference in this humanizing and very personal portrayal of what it means to be Black in America s schools As a Black man who has spent his life as a student and an educator Brian shares his own story of navigating the world overcoming his family struggles and eventually entering an educational system that he believes is inherently racist damaging and disserving He exposes the challenges Black students face in elite and predominantly white universities and spaces dissects Black exceptionalism in the schooling experience and offers a firsthand account of the emotional and psychological impact made by teachers administrators policies practices lessons and student interactions Most Americans are looking for answers on how to improve our education system as illustrated by the critical race theory debate but have not fully understood the lived Black experience until now With powerful insight into a thoroughly American institution Brian offers present day solutions and liberating hope for a centuries long issue as well as a galvanizing and radical step forward It is a book essential to our challenging times The Jesus Syndrome Joseph John Francis,2009-07

The Journal of the National Education Association National Education Association of the United States,1923 Invisible Birthmarks Alnasir Rajan,Rajan Alnasir Rajan,2010 The East African political climate is such that nobody especially the minorities dare voice their concerns and fears They suffer and endure in silence and always wait for better times to come Those who tried to speak out have never seen the light of day again The author has lived most of his life in East Africa and he has been exposed to pre and post independence survivors who had a lot to say but no one to listen to them They found a lending ear and the author was a patient listener Yearning for closure to unfinished unanswered questions and events that brought untold suffering to countless people in East Africa made him a patient and silent listener As time went by he found that a lot of people did not have a voice they did not have a say in how their personal lives were affected by the actions of unsympathetic others He decided he was going to fill that void however controversial it may turn out to be and recapture history in its reality Maybe even correct the misconceptions of history that were created to adjust the balance of popularity and loyalty to powers or races in positions of authority
