Services and the Knowledge-Based Economy Mark Boden, Ian Miles, 2019-07-23 First published in 2000 Over the past two decades the service sector have increased dramatically and now occupy the largest share of the economy of advanced industrial societies Certain business services are regularly cited as evidence for the emergence of a knowledge economy In this pioneering book leading researchers in the fields of service industries and innovation studies investigate the reasons for the growth of the service sectors and this emergent knowledge economy Drawing on material as diverse as macroeconomic statistics and firm level case studies the contributors demonstrate that services are often important innovators in their own right as well as contributing to innovation and economic performance in their user industries The question of how far services are special cases and what specific processes and trajectories characterize their innovative activity is treated systematically. Additionally, a variety of original analyses and information resources are presented. This book should be of value to the student of the modern industrial society to those seeking to forge policies appropriate to the new context of economic development and to researchers who are confronting the challenges of the knowledge economy.

Digital Innovation: Innovation Processes In Virtual Clusters And Digital Regions Valerio Elia, Tommaso Massari, Giuseppina Passiante, 2003-09-19. This book presents the results of an empirical analysis of the new phenomenon of virtual clusters (VCs) which highlight the dynamics of these emerging innovation networks in the digital economy, the challenges that this dynamics represents for the conventional theories which are unable to define a comprehensive framework that supports the development of these networks. An overview of the most significant theoretical approaches to innovation networks and their rethinking in the digital economy scenario. Following a neo-Schumpeterian approach, a particular focus is on the opportunity to integrate the economic benefits coming from the geographical proximity with the advantages related to the organisational proximity allowed by the ICT networks. The constituent points of a strategy aimed at sustaining the developing processes of a VC in a drawback region and a description of the e-Salento project, an application of this strategy to an Italian drawback region, the Salento. Some general implications of the project for theory and practice are also discussed. The architecture and the master plan of two initiatives within the e-Salento project concerning the agribusiness and tourism sectors. A model of leadership to guide innovation in an organisation competing in the digital economy including both firms and regions. The perspective advanced in this book addresses issues concerned with VC growth and regions' economic development processes that are common to both the regional studies and the innovation management literature: the book represents an important empirically grounded contribution to them. Furthermore, several scholars argue that new development models are emerging for firms and regions. There is a lack of published work that provides empirical grounding and/or analytical models of firms and regions' development processes in the Net Economy.

The Capacity to Innovate Sarah Giest, 2021-04-07. In The Capacity to Innovate, Sarah Giest provides insight into the collaborative and absorptive capacities needed to provide public support to local innovation through cluster organizations. The book offers a detailed view of the vertical multi-level and horizontal dynamics in clusters and cluster policy and addresses how they are managed and supported. Using the biotechnology field as an example, Giest highlights challenges in the collaborative efforts of public bodies, private companies, and research institutes to establish a successful ecosystem of innovation in this sector. The book argues that cluster policy in collaboration with cluster organizations should focus on absorptive and collaborative capacity elements missing in the cluster context in order to improve performance. Currently, governments operate at different levels from the local to the supranational in order to support clusters, and cluster policies are often pursued alongside other programs, leading to uncoordinated efforts and ineffective cluster strategies. The Capacity to Innovate advocates for a coordinated effort by government and cluster organizations to support capacity elements lacking within the specific cluster context excellent overview and understanding of the prerequisites for and the role of entrepreneurship in regional growth and development Charlie Karlsson J nk ping University Sweden Recent research has found pronounced differences in the level of entrepreneurship and new business formation across various regions and nations This timely Handbook reveals that the development of new ventures as well as their effects on overall economic growth are strongly shaped by their regional and national environment The expert group of contributors gives an overview on the current state of the art in this field and proposes avenues for further investigation Topics include the regional determinants of new business formation the effects of start ups on growth the role of globalization for regional entrepreneurship the effect of national and regional framework conditions as well as the role of universities as incubators of innovative new firms Entrepreneurship and Dynamics in the Knowledge Economy Charlie Karlsson,Börje Johansson,Roger Stough,2006-09-27 The phenomenon of entrepreneurship has attracted researchers from a variety of disciplines and a diverse number of analytical approaches Currently there is a considerable amount of confusion and a variety of conflicting theories which are being used interchangeably and ambiguously In this important new book the authors argue that there are analytically distinct forms of entrepreneurship each of them having an individual logic of their own They highlight the role of individual economic agents with endowments of new knowledge or new combinations of old knowledge as entrepreneurs and thus identify them as dynamic factors in the knowledge economy Overall this book not only provides a contemporary overview of current research in the field but also summarizes the policy conclusions that can be drawn from current research Economy Ron Martin,2017-11-30 Economic geographers have always argued that space is key to understanding the economy that the processes of economic growth and development do not occur uniformly across geographic space but rather differ in degree and form as between different nations regions cities and localities with major implications for the geographies of wealth and welfare This was true in the industrial phase of global capitalism and is no less true in the contemporary era of post industrial knowledge driven global capitalism Indeed the marked changes occurring in the structure and operation of the economy in the sources of wealth creation in the organisation of the firm in the nature of work in the boundaries between market and state and in the regulation of the socio economy have stimulated an unprecedented wave of theoretical conceptual and empirical enquiry by economic geographers Even economists who traditionally have viewed the economy in non spatial terms as existing on the head of the proverbial pin are increasingly recognising the importance of space place and location to understanding economic growth technological innovation competitiveness and globalisation This collection of previously published work though containing but a fraction of the huge explosion in research and publication that has occurred over the past two decades seeks to convey a sense of this exciting phase in the intellectual development of the discipline and its importance in grasping the spatialities of contemporary economic life Science, Technology and Global Governance John R. De La Mothe,2014-04-23 Science technology and innovation have long been key factors in the competitive advantage of nations

Today however the new international political economy is being increasingly driven by science and technology in new ways Integration globalization and internationalization have all become watchwords for a series of dynamic processes in which science and technology are deeply implicated As a result not only are the policies of national governments being exposed in terms of the limits of their sovereignty but science and technology are being increasingly implicated in a wide array of public issues ranging from security privacy development and economic growth to employment environment foreign policy and geopolitics Clearly in today s emerging world the ways in which governments organize their science and technology policy their science and technology intelligence and their research advisory structures and resources matter more today than ever before In turn the contract between science and democracy is being rapidly redefined This book is the first to comprehensively discuss these critical issues
