empirical contribution to the literature of secularization It moves beyond the now largely sterile and theoretical debates about the validity of the secularization thesis or paradigm Combining historical and social scientific perspectives Clive D Field uses a wide range of quantitative sources to probe the extent and pace of religious change in Britain during the long 1960s In most cases data is presented for the years 1955-80 with particular attention to the methodological and other challenges posed by each source type Following an introductory chapter which reviews the historiography introduces the sources and defines the chronological and other parameters Field provides evidence for all major facets of religious belonging behaving and believing as well as for institutional church measures The work engages with and largely refutes Callum G Brown's influential assertion that Britain experienced revolutionary secularization in the 1960s which was highly gendered in nature and with 1963 the major tipping point Instead a more nuanced picture emerges with some religious indicators in crisis others continuing on an existing downward trajectory and yet others remaining stable Building on previous research by the author and other scholars and rejecting recent proponents of counter secularization the long 1960s are ultimately located within the context of a longstanding gradualist and still ongoing process of secularization in Britain political modernity in the first half of the 20th century taking the case of the Serbian Orthodox Church as an example This book historicizes the widely held assumption that the bond between religion and nationalism in the Balkans is a natural one or that this bond has been historically inevitable It tells a complex story of how East Orthodox Christianity came to be at the core of one version of Serbian nationalism by bringing together the themes of religion nationalism politics state building secularization and modernity Maria Falina reconstructs how the ideological fusion between Serbian nationalism and East Orthodox Christianity was forged The analysis emphasizes ideas and ideologies through a close reading of public discourses and historical narratives while paying attention to individual actors and their personal histories The book argues that the particular political vision of the Serbian Orthodox Church emerged in reaction to and in interaction with the challenges posed by political modernity that were not unique to Yugoslavia These included establishing the modern multinational and multi religious state the fear of secularization and the rise of communism and fascism Religion and Politics in Interwar Yugoslavia makes an important contribution to understanding the history of interwar Yugoslavia 20th century Europe and the ties between religion and nationalism
