The Three Secular Plays of Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz Guillermo Schmidhuber, 2014-10-17 Sor Juana In s de la Cruz 1648 1695 wrote poetry prose and plays and is considered the greatest of Mexican women writers

She was an intellectual prodigy reportedly mastering Latin in twenty lessons and at sixteen she entered a convent so that she might continue her learning One of the most influential early feminists in the New World she answered a bishop's criticism in a letter that has become a classic defense of the education of women She collected a private library of 4 000 volumes but when she was told that her studies were delaying the progress of her spiritual education she gave away her books and devoted herself to religious studies Traditionally scholars have attributed only one complete play to Sor Juana but in 1989 Guillermo Schmidhuber discovered a lost play The Second Celestina which he proved conclusively to be Sor Juana's earliest comedia co-authored with Agustin Salazar y Torres Schmidhuber's critical study is the first dedicated exclusively to the secular plays and the first to confirm Sor Juana's authorship of three dramatic pieces Combining literary history and criticism Schmidhuber explores the life and originality of Sor Juana's dramas and helps elucidate her enigmatic genius Though Sor Juana's work as a poet and intellectual has received increasing attention in the last decade writing about her has rarely taken into account her role as dramatist Schmidhuber helps correct this critical imbalance by examining Sor Juana's plays in light of dramatic theory He finds elements of both mannerist and baroque theater in her work sometimes both within the same play

Sex in Relation to Society Havelock Ellis, 1910 Living Poetically Sylvia Walsh, 2012-04-30 Living Poetically is the first book to focus primarily on Kierkegaard's existential aesthetics as opposed to traditional aesthetic features of his writings such as the use of pseudonyms literary techniques and figures and literary criticism Living Poetically traces the development of the concept of the poetic in Kierkegaard's writings as that concept is worked out in an ethical religious perspective in contrast to the aesthetics of early German romanticism and Hegelian idealism Sylvia Walsh seeks to elucidate what it means in Kierkegaard's view to be an authentic poet in the form of a poetic writer and to clarify his own role as a Christian poet and writer as he understood it Walsh shows that in spite of strong criticisms made of the poetic in some of his writings Kierkegaard maintained a fundamentally positive understanding of the poetic as an essential ingredient in ethical and religious forms of life Walsh thus reclaims Kierkegaard as a poetic thinker and writer from those who would interpret him as an ironic practitioner of an aestheticism devoid of and detached from the ethical religious as well as from those who view him as rejecting the poetic and aesthetic on ethical or religious grounds Viewing contemporary postmodern feminism and deconstruction as advocating a romantic mode of living poetically Walsh concludes with a feminist reading of Kierkegaard that affirms both individuality and relatedness commonalities and differences between the self and others men and women for the fashioning of an authentic mode of living poetically in the present age
