The End of Sustainability Melinda Harm Benson,Robin Kundis Craig,2017-11-30 The time has come for us to collectively reexamine and ultimately move past the concept of sustainability in environmental and natural resources law and management The continued invocation of sustainability in policy discussions ignores the emerging reality of the Anthropocene which is creating a world characterized by extreme complexity radical uncertainty and unprecedented change From a legal and policy perspective we must face the impossibility of even defining let alone pursuing a goal of sustainability in such a world Melinda Harm Benson and Robin Kundis Craig propose resilience as a more realistic and workable communitarian approach to environmental governance American environmental and natural resources laws date to the early 1970s when the steady state Balance of Nature model was in vogue a model that ecologists have long since rejected even before adding the complication of climate change In the Anthropocene a new era in which humans are the key agent of change on the planet these laws and American culture more generally need to embrace new narratives of complex ecosystems and humans role as part of them narratives exemplified by cultural tricksters and resilience theory Updating Aldo Leopold s vision of nature and humanity as a single community for the Anthropocene Benson and Craig argue that the narrative of resilience integrates humans back into the complex social and ecological system known as Earth As such it empowers humans to act for a better future through law and policy despite the very real challenges of climate change concerning the rise of private space exploration with a view toward developing policy that may influence real world decision making The plethora of questions demanding serious attention privatisation and commercialisation the impact on the environment health futures risk assessment responsibility and governance are directly addressed in this scholarly work

Toward a Non-humanist Humanism William V. Spanos, 2017-07-31 In his book The End of Education Toward Posthumanism William V Spanos critiqued the traditional Western concept of humanism arguing that its origins are to be found not in ancient Greece's love of truth and wisdom but in the Roman imperial era when those Greek values were adapted in the service of imperialism on a deeply rooted metaphysical level Returning to that question of humanism in the context of the United States war on terror in the post 9 11 era Toward a Non humanist Humanism points out the dehumanizing dynamics of Western modernity in which the rule of law is increasingly made flexible to defend against threats both real and potential Spanos considers and assesses the work of thinkers such as Giorgio Agamben Alain Badiou Judith Butler Jacques Rancière and Slavoj Žižek as humanistic reformers and concludes with an effort to imagine a different kind of humanism a non humanist humanism in which the old binary of friend versus foe gives way to a coming community without ethnic cultural or sexual divisions
