NATURE NOTES

FOR

1906

"To sit on rocks, to muse o'er flood and fell,
To slowly trace the forest's shady scene,
Where things that own not man's dominion dwell,
And mortal foot hath ne'er or rarely been;
To climb the trackless mountain all unseen,
With the wild flock, that never need a fold;
Alone o'er steeps and foaming falls to lean;
This is not solitude: 'tis but to hold
Converse with Nature's charms, and view her stores unrolled."
Byron.

It heightens our appreciation of the previously unrecognised complex knowledge of Indigenous societies. Theodore Roosevelt, Naturalist in the Arena Char Miller, Clay S. Jenkinson, 2020-03-01 Theodore Roosevelt's scientific curiosity and love of the outdoors proved a defining force throughout his hectic life as a rancher and explorer, police commissioner and governor of New York, vice president and president of the United States. Conservation and natural history were parts of a whole for this driven charismatic public servant and Roosevelt approached the natural world with joy and a passionate engagement. Drawing on an array of approaches, biographical, ecological and environmental, literary and political, Theodore Roosevelt, Naturalist in the Arena analyzes this energetic man's manifold encounters with the great outdoors. George Bird Grinnell, Gifford Pinchot, John Muir and William Hornaday were among the many conservationists with whom Roosevelt corresponded, collaborated, hiked and governed and in turn inspired. Together, Roosevelt and his contemporaries developed a progressive argument for the conservation of natural resources as a way to construct a more democratic nation-state. This legacy also comes with some troubling domestic and global implications as Roosevelt fused his call for the conservation of resources, natural and human, domestically and internationally with a deep-seated conviction that some were more fit than others to control the world and define its future.
