Infinite Regress David Joselit, 2001-02-23 In Infinite Regress David Joselit considers the plurality of identities and practices within Duchamp's life and art between 1910 and 1941 conducting a synthetic reading of his early and middle career There is not one Marcel Duchamp but several Within his oeuvre Duchamp practiced a variety of modernist idioms and invented an array of contradictory personas artist and art dealer conceptualist and craftsman chess champion and dreamer dandy and recluse In Infinite Regress David Joselit considers the plurality of identities and practices within Duchamp's life and art between 1910 and 1941 conducting a synthetic reading of his early and middle career Taking into account underacknowledged works and focusing on the conjunction of the machine and the commodity in Duchamp's art Joselit notes a consistent opposition between the material world and various forms of measurement inscription and quantification Challenging conventional accounts he describes the readymade strategy not merely as a rejection of painting but as a means of producing new models of the modern self

The Barbarian Invasions Eric Michaud, 2019-12-03 How the history of art begins with the myth of the barbarian invasion the romantic fragmentation of classical eternity The history of art argues Eric Michaud begins with the romantic myth of the barbarian invasions Viewed from the nineteenth century the Germanic led invasions of the Roman Empire in the fifth century became the gateway to modernity seen not as a catastrophe but as a release from a period of stagnation renewing Roman culture with fresh northern blood and with new art that was anti Roman and anticlassical Artifacts of art from then on would be considered as the natural product of races and peoples rather than the creation of individuals The myth of the barbarian invasions achieved the fragmentation of classical eternity This narrative Michaud explains inseparable from the formation of nation states and the rise of nationalism in Europe was based on the dual premise of the homogeneity and continuity of peoples. Local and historical particularities became weapons aimed at classicism's universalism. The history of art linked its objects with racial groups, denouncing or praising certain qualities as Latin or Germanic. Thus, the predominance of linear elements was thought to betray a southern origin and the painterly a Germanic or northern source. Even today, Michaud points out, it is said that art best embodies the genius of peoples. In the globalized contemporary art market, the ethnic provenance of works categorized for example as African, American, Latino, or Native American creates added value. The market displays the same competition among races that was present at the foundation of art history as a discipline.

On the Wings of Hypothesis Annette Michelson, 2020-10-13 Annette Michelson's erudite and incisive readings of the revolutionary films of Sergei Eisenstein and Dziga Vertov collected for the first time. This posthumous volume gathers Annette Michelson's erudite and incisive readings of the revolutionary films of Sergei Eisenstein and Dziga Vertov, giving readers the opportunity to track her sustained investigations into their work. Michelson introduced American audiences to Soviet cinema in the early 1970s, extending the interpretive paradigm she had used for American filmmakers of the mid-twentieth century in which she emphasized phenomenological readings of their work to films and writings by Eisenstein and Vertov. Over four decades, Michelson returned again and again to what she calls following Eisenstein intellectual cinema: the deliberate attempt to create philosophically informed analogues for consciousness. The volume includes Michelson's major essays on Eisenstein's unrealized attempts to make movies of both Marx's Capital and Joyce's Ulysses, as well as her authoritative discussion of Vertov's 1929 masterpiece The Man with a Movie Camera. Together, the texts demonstrate Michelson's pervasive influence as a writer and thinker and her role in the establishment of cinema studies as an academic field. This collection makes these canonical texts available for a new generation of film scholars.

A Cultural History of Hair in the Modern Age Geraldine Biddle-Perry, 2020-12-10 Over the last century, there has been a revolution in self-presentation and social attitudes towards hair. Developments in mass manufacturing, advances in chemical science, and new understandings of bodies and minds have been embraced by new kinds of hairdressers and their clientele, embodied in styles that reflect shifting ideals of what it is to be and to look modern. The emergence of the ladies' hairdressing salon, the rise of the celebrity stylist, the impact of Hollywood, an expanding mass media, and a new synergy between fashions in clothing and hairstyles have rippled out globally. Fashions in hair styles and their representation have taken on new meanings as a way of resisting dominant social structures, experimenting with social taboos, and expressing a modern sense of self. From the 1920s bob to the punk cut, hair has continued to be deeply involved in society's larger issues. Drawing on a wealth of visual, textual, and object sources and illustrated with 75 images, A Cultural History of Hair in the Modern Age presents essays that explore how politics, science, religion, fashion, beauty, the visual arts, and popular culture have reshaped modern hair and its significance as an agent of social change.

Realism after Modernism Devin

Fore, 2015-01-30 The paradox at the heart of the return to realism in the interwar years as seen in work by Moholy Nagy Brecht and others The human figure made a spectacular return in visual art and literature in the 1920s Following modernism's withdrawal nonobjective painting gave way to realistic depictions of the body and experimental literary techniques were abandoned for novels with powerfully individuated characters But the celebrated return of the human in the interwar years was not as straightforward as it may seem In Realism after Modernism Devin Fore challenges the widely accepted view that this period represented a return to traditional realist representation and its humanist postulates Interwar realism he argues did not reinstate its nineteenth century predecessor but invoked realism as a strategy of mimicry that anticipates postmodernist pastiche Through close readings of a series of works by German artists and writers of the period Fore investigates five artistic devices that were central to interwar realism He analyzes Bauhaus polymath L. szl Moholy Nagy's use of linear perspective three industrial novels riven by the conflict between the temporality of capital and that of labor Brecht's socialist realist plays which explore new dramaturgical principles for depicting a collective subject a memoir by Carl Einstein that oscillates between recollection and self erasure and the idiom of physiognomy in the photomontages of John Heartfield Fore's readings reveal that each of these rehumanized works in fact calls into question the very categories of the human upon which realist figuration is based Paradoxically even as the human seemed to make a triumphal return in the culture of the interwar period the definition of the human and the integrity of the body were becoming more tenuous than ever before Interwar realism did not hearken back to earlier artistic modes but posited new and unfamiliar syntaxes of aesthetic encounter revealing the emergence of a human subject quite unlike anything that had come before Random Order Branden Wayne Joseph, Robert Rauschenberg, 2003 An examination of the artistic development of Robert Rauschenberg focusing on his relationship with John Cage and his role in the making of the American neo avant garde

Neo-Avantgarde and Culture Industry Benjamin H. D. Buchloh, 2003-02-28 Eighteen essays written by Buchloh over the last twenty years each looking at a single artist within the framework of specific theoretical and historical questions Some critics view the postwar avant garde as the empty recycling of forms and strategies from the first two decades of the twentieth century Others view it more positively as a new articulation of the specific conditions of cultural production in the postwar period Benjamin Buchloh one of the most insightful art critics and theoreticians of recent decades argues for a dialectical approach to these positions This collection contains eighteen essays written by Buchloh over the last twenty years Each looks at a single artist within the framework of specific theoretical and historical questions The art movements covered include Nouveau Realisme in France Arman Yves Klein Jacques de la Villegle art in postwar Germany Joseph Beuys Sigmar Polke Gerhard Richter American Fluxus and pop art Robert Watts and Andy Warhol minimalism and postminimal art Michael Asher and Richard Serra and European and American conceptual art Daniel Buren Dan Graham Buchloh addresses some artists in terms of their oppositional approaches to language and painting for example Nancy Spero and Lawrence Weiner

About others he asks more general questions concerning the development of models of institutional critique Hans Haacke and the theorization of the museum Marcel Broodthaers or he addresses the formation of historical memory in postconceptual art James Coleman One of the book's strengths is its systematic interconnected account of the key issues of American and European artistic practice during two decades of postwar art Another is Buchloh's method which integrates formalist and socio historical approaches specific to each subject

Women Artists at the Millennium Carol Armstrong, Catherine De Zegher, 2011-02-25 Artists art historians and critics look at the legacies of feminism and critical theory in the work of women artists more than thirty years after the beginning of the modern women's movement and Linda Nochlin's landmark essay Why Have There Been No Great Women Artists More than thirty years after the birth of the modern women's movement and the beginnings of feminist art making and art history the time is ripe to examine the legacies of those revolutions In Women Artists at the Millennium artists art historians and critics examine the differences that feminist art practice and critical theory have made in late twentieth century art and the discourses surrounding it In 1971 when Linda Nochlin published her essay Why Have There Been No Great Women Artists in a special issue of Art News there were no women's studies no feminist theory no such thing as feminist art criticism there was instead a focus on the mythic figure of the great male artist through history Since then the woman artist has not simply been assimilated into the canon of greatness but has expanded art making into a multiplicity of practices with new parameters and perspectives In Women Artists at the Millennium artists including Martha Rosler and Yvonne Rainer reflect upon their own varied practices and art historians discuss the innovative work of such figures as Louise Bourgeois Lygia Clark Mona Hatoum and Carrie Mae Weems And Linda Nochlin considers changes since her landmark essay and looks to the future writing We will need all our wit and courage to make sure that women's voices are heard their work seen and written about
