Publishers Directory, 1994 The Cumulative Book Index, 1986 A world list of books in the English language
The Tokyo Observer Leighton Willgerodt, 1988 Who's who in American Education, 1989 Books in Print Supplement, 1985 Bibliography of Asian Studies, 1988 Contemporary Japanese Film Mark Schilling, 1999-11-01 This comprehensive look at Japanese cinema in the 1990s includes nearly four hundred reviews of individual films and a dozen interviews and profiles of leading directors and producers Interpretive essays provide an overview of some of the key issues and themes of the decade and provide background and context for the treatment of individual films and artists In Mark Schilling's view Japanese film is presently in a period of creative ferment with a lively independent sector challenging the conventions of the industry mainstream Younger filmmakers are rejecting the stale formulas that have long characterized major studio releases reaching out to new influences from other media television comics music videos and even computer games and from both the West and other Asian cultures In the process they are creating fresh and exciting films that range from the meditative to the manic offering hope that Japanese film will not only survive but thrive as it enters the new millennium Complicit Fictions James A. Fujii, 2023-09-01 In Complicit Fictions James Fujii challenges traditional approaches to the study of Japanese narratives and Japanese culture in general He employs current Western literary critical theory to reveal the social and political contest inherent in modern Japanese literature and also confronts recent breakthroughs in literary studies coming out of Japan The result is a major work that explicitly questions the eurocentric dimensions of our conception of modernity Modern Japanese literature has long been judged by Western and Japanese critics alike according to its ability to measure up to Western realist standards standards that assume the centrality of an essential self or subject. Consequently, it has been made to appear deficient, derivative or exotically different. Fujii challenges this prevailing characterization by reconsidering the very notion of the subject. He focuses on such disparate twentieth-century writers as Natsume Soseki, Tokuda Shusei, Shimazaki Toson and Origuchi Shinobu and particularly on their divergent strategies to affirm subjecthood in narrative form. The author probes what has been ignored or suppressed in earlier studies: the contestation that inevitably marks the creation of subjects in a modern nation-state. He demonstrates that as writers negotiate the social imperatives of national interests which always attempt to dictate the limits of subjecthood, they are ultimately unable to avoid complicity with the aims of the state. Fujii confronts several historical issues in ways that will enlighten historians as well as literary critics. He engages theory to highlight what prevailing criticism typically ignores: the effects of urbanization on Japanese family life, the relation of literature to an emerging empire and to popular culture, the representations of gender, family and sexuality in Meiji society. Most important is his exposure of the relationship between state formation and cultural production. His skillful weaving of literary theory, textual interpretation and cultural history makes this a book that students and scholars of modern Japanese culture will refer to for years to come.

In Complicit Fictions James Fujii challenges traditional approaches to the study of Japanese narratives and Japanese culture in general. He employs current Western literary critical theory to reveal the social and political contest inherent in modern Japanese literature. Hilo Rains Juliet S. Kono, 1988 Poetry Asian American Studies. In her first collection of poetry, Juliet S. Kono shares her family's immigrant past and captures in poetic memory a time and place rich in detail. The work spans two generations and examines the daily events of life on the sugar plantation and growing up Japanese American in Hawaii on the Big Island. Kono's sharp observational skills and lyrical voice paint a picture that resonates with both the tenderness and strength of clear-eyed memory. The collection includes one short story and archival family photographs.

Corpus Linguistics Ana María Hornero Corsico, Ana María Hornero, María José Luzón, Silvia Murillo Ornat, 2008. The aim of this volume is to present a state-of-the-art view on corpus studies. This collection of papers presented at the XII Susanne Hbner Seminar in November 2003 at the University of Zaragoza comprises both quantitative and qualitative analyses and studies on both written and oral corpora. Structured in seven sections, the book covers a wide range of approaches and methodologies and reflects current linguistic research. The papers have been written by scholars from a large number of universities, mainly from Europe but also from the USA and Asia. The volume offers contributions on diachronic studies, pragmatic analyses and cognitive linguistics as well as on translation and English for Specific Purposes. The book includes several papers on corpus design and reports on research on oral corpora. At a more specific level, the papers analyse aspects such as politeness issues, dialectology, comparable corpora, discourse markers, the expression of evidentiality and writer stance, metaphor and metonymy, conditional sentences, evaluative adjectives, delexicalised verbs and nominalization.
