Effluents from Alternative Demilitarization Technologies F.W. Holm, 2012-12-06 FRANCIS W HOLM 30 Agua Sarca Road Placitas New Mexico 1 Overview The North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO sponsored an Advanced Research in Prague Czech Republic on October 13-15, 1997 to collect and Workshop ARW study information on effluents from alternative demilitarization technologies and to report on these findings. The effluents or process residues identified for assessment at the workshop are generated by systems that have been proposed as alternatives to incineration technology for destruction of munitions, chemical warfare agent and associated materials and debris. The alternative technologies analyzed are grouped into three categories based on process bulk operating temperature: low 0-200 °C, medium 200-600 °C and high 600-3500 °C. Reaction types considered include hydrolysis, biodegradation, electrochemical oxidation, gas phase high temperature reduction, steam reforming, gasification, sulfur reactions, solvated electron chemistry, sodium reactions, supercritical water oxidation, wet air oxidation and plasma torch technology. These processes, some of which have been studied, represent a broad spectrum only in the laboratory and some of which are in commercial use for destruction of hazardous and toxic wastes. Some technologies have been developed and used for specific commercial applications; however, in all cases, research, development, test and evaluation (RDTE) is necessary to assure that each technology application is effective for destroying chemical warfare materiel. Table 1 contains a list of more than 40 technologies from a recent report for the U.S. Army.

1. Many of the technologies in Table 1 are based on similar principles.

Disposal of Neutralized Wastes National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Army Science and Technology, Committee on Review and Evaluation of the Army Non-Stockpile Chemical Materiel Disposal Program, 2001-04-29. Chemical warfare materiel (CWM) is a collection of diverse items that were used during 60 years of efforts by the United States to develop a capability for conducting chemical warfare. Nonstockpile CWM, which is not included in the current U.S. inventory of chemical munitions, includes buried materiel, recovered materiel, binary chemical weapons, former production facilities and miscellaneous materiel. CWM that was buried in pits on former military sites is now being dug up as the land is being developed for other purposes. Other CWM is on or near the surface at former test and firing ranges. According to the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC), which was ratified by the United States in April 1997, nonstockpile CWM items in storage at the time of ratification must be destroyed by 2007. The U.S. Army is the designated executive agent for destroying CWM. Nonstockpile CWM is being handled by the Non Stockpile Chemical Materiel Program (NSCMP). Stockpile CWM is the responsibility of the Chemical Stockpile Disposal Program. Because nonstockpile CWM is stored or buried in many locations, the Army is developing transportable disposal systems that can be moved from site to site as needed. The Army has plans to test prototypes of three transportable systems: the rapid response system (RRS), the munitions management device (MMD) and the explosive destruction system (EDS) for accessing and destroying a range of

nonstockpile chemical agents and militarized industrial chemicals The RRS is designed to treat recovered chemical agent identification sets CAIS which contain small amounts of chemical agents and a variety of highly toxic industrial chemicals The MMD is designed to treat nonexplosively configured chemical munitions The EDS is designed to treat munitions containing chemical agents with energetics equivalent to three pounds of TNT or less These munitions are considered too unstable to be transported or stored A prototype EDS system has recently been tested in England by non stockpile program personnel Although originally proposed for evaluation in this report no test data were available to the committee on the composition of wastes from the EDS Therefore alternative technologies for the destruction of EDS wastes will be discussed in a supplemental report in fall 2001 Treatment of solid wastes such as metal munition bodies packing materials and carbon air filters were excluded from this report Review and Evaluation of the Army Non Stockpile Chemical Materiel Disposal Program Disposal of Neutralent Wastes evaluates the near term 1999 2005 application of advanced nonincineration technologies such as from the Army s Assembled Chemical Weapons Assessment Program and the Alternative Technologies and Approaches Project in a semi fixed skid mounted mode to process Rapid Response System Munitions Management Device and Explosive Destruction System liquid neutralization wastes Alternatives for the Demilitarization of Conventional Munitions National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Army Science and Technology, Committee on Alternatives for the Demilitarization of Conventional Munitions, 2019-02-11 The U S military has a stockpile of approximately 400 000 tons of excess obsolete or unserviceable munitions About 60 000 tons are added to the stockpile each year Munitions include projectiles bombs rockets landmines and missiles Open burning open detonation OB OD of these munitions has been a common disposal practice for decades although it has decreased significantly since 2011 OB OD is relatively quick procedurally straightforward and inexpensive However the downside of OB and OD is that they release contaminants from the operation directly into the environment Over time a number of technology alternatives to OB OD have become available and more are in research and development Alternative technologies generally involve some type of contained destruction of the energetic materials including contained burning or contained detonation as well as contained methods that forego combustion or detonation Alternatives for the Demilitarization of Conventional Munitions reviews the current conventional munitions demilitarization stockpile and analyzes existing and emerging disposal treatment and reuse technologies This report identifies and evaluates any barriers to full scale deployment of alternatives to OB OD or non closed loop incineration combustion and provides recommendations to overcome such barriers Aberdeen Proving Ground, Transportable Treatment Systems for Non-stockpile Chemical Warfare Materiel, 2001 Toxicology of Organophosphate and Carbamate Compounds Ramesh C Gupta, 2011-04-28 This text reference book provides the most comprehensive coverage of anticholinesterase compounds Organophosphates and Carbamates which constitute the largest number of chemicals that are primarily used as insecticides in agriculture industry and around the home garden Some OPs nerve agents have been used in chemical warfare and terrorist attacks while some OPs and CMs have been recommended as therapeutic agents in human medicine as well as in veterinary medicine. Many chemicals of both classes are extremely toxic and lack selectivity; thus their inadvertent accidental use continues to pose a threat to human and animal health, aquatic systems, and wildlife. These anticholinesterase agents produce a variety of toxicological effects in target and nontarget organs. In light of this complexity, this multi-authored book is written by the well-known scientists from many countries. The book is organized into nine sections with a total of 49 chapters to provide in-depth knowledge on various aspects of OP and CM compounds, including their use, classification, mechanism-based toxicity, and prophylactic and therapeutic measurements. Several chapters are written with special emphasis to cover timely topics such as chemical warfare agents, physiologically based pharmacokinetic modeling, structure and function of cholinesterases, paraoxonase, carboxylesterases, developmental neurotoxicity, the intermediate syndrome, oxidative stress, endocrine disruption, and DNA damage, gene expression, and carcinogenesis. Section VI with 5 chapters is specifically devoted to risk assessment and safety and regulatory guidelines for pesticides. Describes everything you need to know about Organophosphates and Carbamates. Extensively covers pesticides, nerve agents, therapeutic drugs, and flame retardants. Describes epidemiology of the world's major disasters involving Organophosphates and Carbamates. Covers animal, human, aquatic, and wildlife toxicity of Anticholinesterases. Insights into in-depth cholinergic and noncholinergic mechanisms of toxicity. Describes recent advancements in cholinesterases, paraoxonases, carboxylesterases, oxidative stress, endocrine disruption, cardiac and pulmonary toxicity, and carcinogenesis. Provides in vitro and in vivo models for neurotoxicity testing. Integrates knowledge of studies in lab animals and humans. Offers risk safety assessment and national/international guidelines for permissible levels of pesticide residues. Describes management of Anticholinesterase poisoning in humans.

Explaining Risk Analysis Michael Greenberg, 2016-09-13. Risk analysis is not a narrowly defined set of applications. Rather, it is widely used to assess and manage a plethora of hazards that threaten dire implications. However, too few people actually understand what risk analysis can help us accomplish, and even among experts, knowledge is often limited to one or two applications. Explaining Risk Analysis frames risk analysis as a holistic planning process aimed at making better risk-informed decisions and emphasizing the connections between the parts. This framework requires an understanding of basic terms, including explanations of why there is no universal agreement about what risk means, much less risk assessment, risk management, and risk analysis. Drawing on a wide range of case studies, the book illustrates the ways in which risk analysis can help lead to better decisions in a variety of scenarios.

including the destruction of chemical weapons management of nuclear waste and the response to passenger rail threats The book demonstrates how the risk analysis process and the data models and processes used in risk analysis will clarify rather than obfuscate decision makers options This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of risk assessment risk management public health environmental science environmental economics and environmental psychology American Book Publishing Record ,1997 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2002 EPA Publications Bibliography Quarterly Abstract Bulletin United States.
