ABSTRACT: We construct exact t Hooft-Polyakov monopole solutions in a non-Hermitian field theory with local non-Abelian $SU(2)$ gauge symmetry and a modified antilinear CPT symmetry. The solutions are obtained in a fourfold Bogomolny-Prasad-Sommerfield scaling limit giving rise to two different types of monopole masses that saturate the lower energy bound. These two masses only coincide in the Hermitian limit and in the limit in which the symmetry breaking vacuum tends to the trivial symmetry preserving vacuum. In the two theories corresponding to the two known Dyson maps these two masses are exchanged, unlike the Higgs and the gauge masses, which remain the same in both theories. We identify three separate regions in parameter space bounded by different types of exceptional points. In the first region the monopole masses are finite and tend both to zero at the boundary exceptional point, in the second the monopole masses become complex and in the third only one of the monopole masses becomes zero at the boundary exceptional point, whereas the other tends to infinity. We find a self-dual point in parameter space at which the gauge mass becomes exactly identical to the monopole mass.

1. Introduction

Ever since Dirac demonstrated 89 years ago [1] that the postulate of the existence of magnetic monopoles provides an explanation for the quantization of the electric charge, they have remained an appealing theoretical concept, despite the fact that up to now magnetic monopoles have not been observed in nature. See [2, 3] for a very recent update on the experimental searches of magnetic monopoles in particle colliders and of cosmic origin that have been carried out, are currently performed and on future plans.

The concept of monopoles became an integral part of particle physics, notably of any theory aiming at the formulation of grand unification of all fundamental forces, after t Hooft [4] and Polyakov [5] noticed that gauge theories almost inevitable contain monopole
