

An aerial photograph of a large country estate in Norfolk. A wide river flows through the landscape, bordered by lush green fields and dense forests with autumn-colored trees. In the center, a large, multi-towered castle or manor house sits on a slight rise. To the left of the main house is a long, low building, possibly a stable block or wing. In the foreground, there are several smaller buildings, including a church with a prominent square tower. A golf course is visible to the left of the main house, with its green fairways and sand traps clearly defined. The overall scene is one of a well-maintained, historic country estate.
