Srutek, Elgene E. O. Box, 2013-03-14 When two of us Jiri Kolbek Miroslav Srutek were working in North Korea on the Czech Slovak field expeditions of the early 1990s we did not think initially of comparing our results with the vegetation of surrounding areas or of writing a book Our efforts mainly involved observing and documenting the vegetation as completely as possible and initial recognition of vegetation units At first we focused on the most obvious vegetation types but eventually also any important types that we could discern Later we focused more on forests since almost all of northeastern Asia has forest potential and forests still do form the landscape matrix in most areas First we studied suburban woods and forests most of which are strongly affected by human activities Later though we also had chances to visit and study lovely mountain regions including Myohyang san Kumgang san Su jang san and the high especially beautiful Changbai shan on the border between North Korea and China The Changbai shan is the highest mountain system in the Korean Peninsula including the highest peak Paektu san We gradually changed our goal from an evaluation of forest data from North Korea to comparison with available field data and literature sources from comparable surrounding areas These include South Korea the Russian Far East northeastern China Manchuria and northern Japan including the Kuril Islands Finally we decided to prepare a preliminary survey of the forest vegetation of the Russian Far East and eventually of all of northeastern Asia which would be published in English Methods for Performing Monitoring, Impact, and Ecological Studies on Rocky Shores Steven Nelson Murray, 2002
