1. Introduction

Nowadays, worldwide society lives on hard times: civil wars, international conflicts, economic and political crisis, human rights restrictions, racism, terrorism, media censorship, climate change, poverty, endemic diseases. The literature review have shown that certain events impacted negatively libraries, causing budget constraints or disappearance by the inability of their reorganization when they are completely destroyed or impeded of resumption of their activities in accordance with their institutional mission. Some causes may have internal issues concerning to the libraries management such as: irregular displacement of libraries; infestations; stoppage of funds from sponsors, etc. There are others in regarding to external origins such as natural disaster; political or economic crisis, wars. These and other topics almost always come together and may cause irreparable damage to libraries worldwide, affecting whole society too (Abdul Huq 1995, Bącz 2006). Libraries have the difficult task of protecting and preserving a specific area of common social cultural heritage (Teijgeler 2007). Digital libraries are not immune against external factors that can compete with failures or other negative impact (Thorhauge,
