Advancing Relational Leadership Research Mary Uhl-Bien, Sonia M. Ospina, 2012-10-01 Leaders and followers live in a relational world a world in which leadership occurs in complex webs of relationships and dynamically changing contexts Despite this our theories of leadership are grounded in assumptions of individuality and linear causality If we are to advance understandings of leadership that have more relevance to the world of practice we need to embed issues of relationality into leadership studies This volume addresses this issue by bringing together for the first time a set of prominent scholars from different paradigmatic and disciplinary perspectives to engage in dialogue regarding how to meet the challenges of relationality in leadership research and practice Included are cutting edge thinking heated debate and passionate perspectives on the issues at hand The chapters reveal the varied and nuanced treatments of relationality that come from authors alternative paradigmatic entity constructionist critical views Dialogue scholars reacting to the chapters engage in spirited debate regarding the commensurability or incommensurability of the paradigmatic approaches The editors bring the dialogue together with introductory and concluding chapters that offer a framework for comparing and situating the competing assumptions and perspectives spanning the relational leadership landscape Using paradigm interplay they unpack assumptions and lay out a roadmap for relational leadership research A key takeaway is that advancing relational leadership research requires multiple paradigmatic perspectives and scholars who are conversant in the assumptions brought by these perspectives The book is aimed at those who feel that much of current leadership thinking is missing the boat in today's complex relational world. It provides an essential resource for all leadership scholars and practitioners curious about the nature of research on leadership both those with much research exposure and those new to the field.

Dialogical Meetings in Social Networks Jaakko Seikkula, Tom Erik Arnkil, 2018-05-08 This book describes and analyses two dialogic network practices: Open Dialogues, developed for use in psychiatric crisis situations, and Anticipation Dialogues, used in less acute situations such as multi-agency muddles where the helper systems are stuck. The book is both theoretical and detailed enough for practitioners who wish to apply the approaches to their work. It is meant for professionals in the fields of psycho-social work, including therapists, day-care personnel, social workers, school teachers, researchers, and academics. As the book touches upon dialogues with and within private networks, the book reaches out to clients too.

Complexity of Consultancy Nicholas Sarra,Karina Solsø,Chris Mowles,2022-09-19 Consultancy is a lucrative industry dependent on the production and use of tools and techniques which hold out the promise of success for the organisations it supports transformation or greater efficiency and effectiveness perhaps even culture change However a critical and important question is whether these promises are fulfilled in everyday practice in organisations Is it possible at all for consultants to predict and control the changes that their clients ask for This volume reframes the role of consultants from detached observers wielding a stable body of knowledge useful in all contexts to that of skilled participants in the conscious and unconscious processes of organisational life In this book one of three in a series looking at complexity and management the expert authors bring together their experiences to provide vibrant accounts of how to lead in everyday organisational situations using practical judgement The book includes a brief historical introduction to complexity and leadership real world narratives illustrating concrete dilemmas in the workplace and a concluding chapter that draws together the practical and theoretical implications With both theoretical grounding and practical insights from managers and consultants in leading firms this is an ideal resource for executives and students on leadership development and talent management programmes as well as those undertaking higher education courses in leadership and consulting
