Agriculture Jules N. Pretty, 1995-05-17 It is becoming increasingly clear that a more sustainable agriculture can bring economic environmental and social benefits to farmers communities and nations Regenerating Agriculture draws together for the first time new empirical evidence from a diverse range of agroecological and community settings to show the impacts of more sustainable practices Twenty cases involving widespread success from Brazil Burkina Faso Honduras India Indonesia Kenya Lesotho Mali Mexico Peru Philippines and Sri Lanka are presented and are supported by field and community level data from more than 50 projects and programs in 28 countries Despite this emerging evidence many farmers still depend on high levels of external inputs Regenerating Agriculture identifies the common elements of successful programs and shows how those still using modernist approaches to agriculture can successfully turn to sustainable farming The first chapter outlines the scale of the challenge and includes analysis of sustainable agriculture s characteristics and underlying philosophies and values Pretty then presents analyses of the processes of agricultural modernization focusing on both production and conservation oriented programs and policies and the common elements of success Almost all of these successes have been achieved despite existing biased policy environments that strongly favor modern approaches to agricultural development and at the same time discriminate against sustainability Regenerating Agriculture examines policy frameworks and institutional processes then sets out 25 effective policies that are known to work to support the transition to greater sustainability and self reliance in agriculture Regenerating Agriculture Jules N. comprehensively for the first time the scope and accuracy of indigenous environmental knowledge It shows that in some spheres including agriculture house design fuel and water manipulation the high reputation of local observers is well deserved and often sufficiently insightful to warrant wider imitation However it also reveals that in certain matters notably some aspects of health care and wild species population management local knowledge systems are conspicuously unsound Not all the difficulties are of the communities own making some stem from external factors outside their control However in either case remedial measures can be suggested and this book describes especially for the benefit of practitioners what steps might be taken in rural communities to improve the quality of life The possibility of useful transfers of information from local
