Irving Layton and Robert Creeley Ekbert Faas, Sabrina Reed, 1990-06-01 The correspondence includes heated and lively debates over the work of poets such as Robert Graves, Louis Dudek, and Charles Olson, anecdotes from the personal lives of Creeley and Layton at crucial stages in both their careers, and glimpses of a time of change when the Black Mountain and other postmodernist movements were beginning. Admirers of Creeley and Layton will find this book of special interest, as will students of literature and scholars of modern poetry.

Fornalutx Irving Layton, 1992 Nominated twice for the Nobel Prize, Irving Layton is Canada's most dynamic, controversial, and outspoken poet. His prolific verse reveals his Judaic heritage, his love of women, and his fury and fever for life. This volume of 150 poems, which takes its title from the opening poem, is a new selection from Layton's work between 1928 and 1990, chosen to give a complete picture of the poet: his vision, tone, celebration, attack, defence, disharmony, and the external dualisms of imaginative desire and bitter reality. These are the poems for which Layton will be remembered.

Valentine's Day gift to be lightly given and lightly forgotten Irving Layton's career was based on an unflinching attention to everything he could discover about the human character including its less savoury aspects In the poems of Dance with Desire chosen from across the span of his long career Layton styles himself as a 20th century Catullus loving and hating with equal glee given to passionate excesses and epigrammatic precision utterly unconcerned with sweet nothings or political correctness Layton is often charged with being too verbose with having published far too many substandard poems and having let his verse grow slack as he grew older These are all valid criticisms but they don't really apply to Dance with Desire since its very existence depends upon the excesses embarrassments and foolishness of the unstifled love that Layton celebrates
