Missionaries Of Revolution Soviet Advise:

Missionaries of Revolution Clarence Martin Wilbur, Julie Lien-ying How, 1989 During the 1920s the Soviet Union made a determined effort to stimulate revolution in China sending several scores of military and political advisers there as well as arms and money to influence political developments The usual secrecy surrounding Soviet foreign intervention was broken when the Chinese government seized a mass of documents in a raid on the Soviet military headquarters in Peking in 1927 Missionaries of Revolution weaves together information gleaned from these documents with contemporary historical materials

Making the Foreign Serve China Anne-Marie Brady, 2003-09-08 This book provides the first detailed analysis of a crucial and distinctive element of Chinese foreign policy Anne Marie Brady follows the development of the Chinese Communist Party's foreign affairs system since 1921 focusing on waishi the external policies intended to influence and control both foreigners themselves as well as Chinese citizens contact with and perception of outsiders The term also comprises China's external relations both official state to state and so called unofficial or people to people diplomacy In effect waishi activities encompass all matters related to foreigners and foreign things not merely diplomacy By managing the foreign presence in China and China's contacts with the outside world and by controlling the Chinese population the author argues that waishi has proven to be one of the most effective tools in the CCP's repertoire for building and then sustaining its hold on power Drawing for the first time on policy documents that underpin the phenomena they describe Brady analyzes trends and developments in waishi during each chronological period The book elucidates how the CCP's policies evolved In the 1930s the need for a broad united front in international relations warred with the desire to control the foreign presence in China in the 1940s and 1950s the Sino Soviet alliance and ridding China of the traces of the semi colonial past took precedence in the 1960s the Sino Soviet split led to China's claim as the center of world revolution and in the past twenty years of reform the focus has been the ongoing quest to create a modern nation state as China opens up to the outside world The author considers waishi's deeper meaning as an overriding approach to the foreign which links state to state diplomacy with the management of the foreign presence in China Her groundbreaking research is based on a previously unexplored genre of waishi materials almost all classified in Chinese extensive interviews with waishi officials and foreign participant

Revolutionary States, Leaders, and Foreign Relations Houman A. Sadri, 1997-04-16 This book compares and contrasts the foreign relations strategies of China Cuba and Iran in the first decade of their post revolutionary periods Among a variety of explanatory variables leadership particularly the type of revolutionary leaders played a significant role in explaining the outcome of the policymaking process in each case Three distinct patterns of foreign relations strategies are evident among all three revolutionary regimes in the ten year period Two Track Conflictual and Conciliatory This book is a valuable source for both experts and non experts alike in providing insight into the foreign relations of revolutionary regimes in developing countries and in helping U S policymakers anticipate behaviors of future revolutionary leaders A focal point of this book is the examination of the nonalignment strategies of these prominent developing countries during the infancy of their regimes Each state s particular strategy is described and explained in detail and then contrasted and compared Although there are differences among their foreign policies considering their geographic locations size wealth military capabilities leadership characteristics and political institutions there are significant similarities regarding their foreign policy goals and trends in their foreign relations with the Great Powers Among explanatory factors leadership played a significant role in the policy making process although the foreign relations strategies of these revolutionary regimes were fed by a combination of national and international variables In all three states the tone of foreign policy was set by revolutionary leaders who were either idealists or realists Idealists tended to take a more active and conflictual approach toward one or both of the superpowers while Realists were more cautious and less willing to resort to a conflictual posture This book also investigates the gap between the theoretical and practical nonalignment stance of each state This cross regional study provides policy analysts with clues about the foreign policies of other revolutionary developing countries in similar situations Finally it makes suggestions about how a Great Power may relate to a developing country during its first post revolution decade A World
