Modding Mac Os X

Danny Briere, Pat Hurley

Modding Mac OS X:

Modding Mac OS X Erica Sadun, 2004 Modding Mac OS X isn't about cutting up your Power Mac's case with a saw; all it's about modifying Mac OS X's user interface and unlocking secrets and dispelling your fears of the Unix command line so you can take command of your Mac. Modding Mac OS X starts out with the very basics of showing you how to configure your Mac and do simple things like change Finder views, use an image from iPhoto's library on your desktop, and how to find and use screen savers. From there Modding Mac OS X shows you how to find hidden features in your favorite applications, dive inside application bundles to find hidden resources, change application and system-wide keyboard shortcuts, work with the Property List Editor to read and edit property list files, wrap your head around the defaults command to tweak an application's settings, hack on NIB files to change an application's interface, control an application with AppleScript even if it isn't scriptable. Each Modding example includes detailed step-by-step instructions that even a novice Mac user can follow while also providing the necessary detail to satisfy the experienced hacker. The knowledge you gain from tweaking one application can be easily applied to the next. So go on, empower your inner Mac geek. You know you want to.

Modest modifications include creating a Mac mini home theater, an appliance controller, and a travel kit; other, more complex but very cool mods require wielding a soldering iron. human action and challenges what it means to play Do we play video games or do video games play us Is nonhuman play a mere paradox or the future of gaming And what do video games have to do with quantum theory In Playing at a Distance Sonia Fizek engages with these and many more daunting questions forging new ways to think and talk about games and play that decenter the human player and explore a variety of play formats and practices that require surprisingly little human action Idling in clicker games wandering in walking simulators automating gameplay with bots or simply watching games rather than playing them Fizek shows how these seemingly marginal cases are central to understanding how we play in the digital age Introducing the concept of distance Fizek reorients our view of computer mediated play To play at a distance she says is to delegate the immediate action to the machine and to become participants in an algorithmic spectacle Distance as a media aesthetic framework enables the reader to come to terms with the ambiguity and aesthetic diversity of play Drawing on concepts from philosophy media theory and posthumanism as well as cultural and film studies Playing at a Distance invites a wider understanding of what digital games and gaming are in all their diverse experiences and forms In challenging the common perception of video games as inherently interactive the book contributes to our understanding of the computer's influence on practices of play and prods us to think more broadly about what it means to play The Art of Hacking

Anto.Y,2012-03 Hacker is a person who uses his creativity and knowledge to overcome limitations often in technological contexts Introduction About Hacking If you ask a random person on the street what a hacker is they might recall ever seeing the word in connection to some criminal who hacked some website and stole for example credit card data This is the common image the media sketches of the hacker The somewhat more informed person might think that a hacker is not really a criminal but somebody with a lot of knowledge about computers and security Of course this second definition is a lot better than the first one but I still don't think it catches the essence of what makes one a hacker First of all hacking hasn't necessarily got to do with computers There have been hackers in the Medieval Ages and maybe even in the Stone Ages The fact that they used other means to express their skills and knowledge doesn't make them less than any hacker in the modern ages We are just blessed with the fact that at this moment we are all surrounded by technology a lot of people even are dependent of it
