Care of the Child Facing Death Lindy Burton, 2022-05-24 Originally published in 1974 and written by paediatricians social workers nurses and a parent who cared for her dying child this book is concerned with pinpointing the problems which exist for parents and those involved in the care of sick children both in terms of accepting the facts of a child's illness and in loving supporting and giving them maximum enjoyment within the limits of their condition The fears and anxieties of such children are examined separation from parents fear of pain an increasing sense of difference and in some cases a very real appreciation of their situation All these limit the child's happiness and ways of counteracting them are suggested Similarly the distress of parents and of medical advisers is discussed

The Nature of Suffering and the Goals of Medicine Eric J. Cassell, 2004-03-25 This is a revised and expanded edition of a classic in palliative medicine originally published in 1991 With three added chapters and a new preface summarizing our progress in the area of pain management this is a must have for those in palliative medicine and hospice care The obligation of physicians to relieve human suffering stretches back into antiquity But what exactly is suffering One patient with metastatic cancer of the stomach from which he knew he would shortly die said he was not suffering Another someone who had been operated on for a minor problem in little pain and not seemingly distressed said that even coming into the hospital had been a source of pain and not suffering With such varied responses to the problem of suffering inevitable questions arise Is it the doctor's responsibility to treat the disease or the patient And what is the relationship between suffering and the goals of medicine According to Dr Eric Cassell these are crucial questions but unfortunately have remained only queries void of adequate solutions It is time for the sick person Cassell believes to be not merely an important concern for physicians but the central focus of medicine With this in mind Cassell argues for an understanding of what changes should be made in order to successfully treat the sick while alleviating suffering and how to actually go about making these changes with the methods and training techniques firmly rooted in the doctor's relationship with the patient Dr Cassell offers an incisive critique of the approach of modern medicine Drawing on a number of evocative patient narratives he writes that the goal of medicine must be to treat an individual's suffering and not just the disease In addition Cassell's thoughtful and incisive argument will appeal to psychologists and psychiatrists interested in the nature of pain and suffering

The Nature of Suffering and the Goals of Medicine Eric J. Cassell Clinical Professor of Public Health Cornell University Medical College, 1991-10-03 The Nature of Suffering underscores the change that is taking place in medicine from a basic concern with disease to a greater focus on the sick person Cassell centers his discussion on the problem of suffering because he says its recognition and relief are a test of the adequacy of any system of medicine He describes what suffering is and its relationship to the sick person bodies do not suffer people do An exclusive concern with scientific knowledge of the body and disease therefore impedes an understanding of suffering and diminishes the care of the suffering patient The growing criticism that medicine is not sufficiently humanistic does not go deep enough to provide a basis for a new understanding of medicine New concepts in medicine must have their basis in its history and in the development of ideas about disease and treatment Cassell uses many stories about patients to demonstrate that despite the current dominance of science and technology there can be no diagnosis search for the cause of the patient s disease prognostication or treatment without consideration of the individual sick person Recent trends in medicine and society Cassell believes show that it is time for the sick person to be not merely an important concern for physicians but the central focus of medicine He addresses the exciting problems involved in such a shift In this new medicine doctors would have to know the person as well as they know the disease What are persons however and how are doctors to comprehend them The kinds of knowledge involved are varied including values and aesthetics as well as science In the process of knowing the experience of patient and doctor move to center stage He believes that the exploration of the person will engage medicine in the 21st century just as understanding the body has occupied the last hundred years

Pain and Its Relief Without Addiction Barry Stimmel,1997 Helps physicians and people in pain understand why their pain is not always adequately relieved and addresses the failure of current medicine to effectively alleviate pain Discusses the nature of pain its connections to the emotional and psychological state of patients and the impact particular drugs have on the body Outlines the basic concepts of drug dependence tolerance and withdrawal pharmacological actions and undesired effects of drugs and the correct steps to take in treating pain Paper edition 0 7890 0126 8 24 95 Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR Giving Comfort and Inflicting Pain Irena Madjar,2016-09-17 This phenomenological study describes the lived experience of pain inflicted in the context of medically prescribed treatment and it explores the meanings of such pain for patients who endured it and for nurses whose actions contributed to its generation Thus it presents a thematic description of the phenomenon of clinically inflicted pain The dangers for both patients and nurses when clinically inflicted pain is ignored overlooked or treated with detachment are presented The study also points the way toward nursing practice that is guided by thoughtfulness and sensitivity to patients1 lived experience and an awareness of the freedom and responsibility inherent in nursing actions including those involved in inflicting and relieving pain Questions are raised about nurses1 knowledge attitudes and actions in relation to clinically inflicted pain The study highlights the need for nursing education and practice to consider the contribution of a phenomenological perspective to the understanding of the human experience of pain and the nursing role in its generation prevention and relief Foundations of Nursing E-Book Kim Cooper,Kelly Gosnell,2018-10-23
