Women's Health and Medicine: Transforming Perspective Alice J. Dan, Sue V. Rosser, 2003-06 A vital collection of essays on women's health and women's health studies edited by leaders in the field

Representing the Other Sue Wilkinson, Celia Kitzinger, 1996-07-16 This innovative collection addresses a challenging issue in contemporary feminist theory and practice: whether and how we should represent members of groups to which we do not ourselves belong. The discussions identify key concerns related to representation and difference. Contributors draw on personal experiences of speaking for and about Others in their research, professional practice, writing, or political activism. Problems of representing Others with ethnic or cultural backgrounds different from one's own are highlighted, and the discussions extend to representations of children, prostitutes, infertile women, fat women, gay men with HIV/AIDS, and people with disabilities

The Impact of Women in Congress Debra L. Dodson, 2006-05-18 While existing literature provides compelling evidence that women in public office make a difference, the relationship between descriptive and substantive representation of women in political institutions, long the domain of men, is neither simple nor certain. Embracing New Institutionalists' warnings of the dangers of studying behaviour in an institutional vacuum, this book uses two strikingly different yet consecutive congresses: the Democratically controlled 103rd Congress elected during the Year of the Woman and the Republican controlled 104th Congress elected during the Year of the Angry White Male, as laboratories to explore the complexity of the relationship between women's presence and impact. In-depth interviews with hundreds of staff lobbyists and women members of Congress, along with other quantitative and archival data, are the foundation for case studies of three highly visible policy areas: reproductive rights, women's health and health care, policy important to women but with strikingly different outcomes across the two Congresses. The inquiry is quickly moved beyond the simple question "Do women make a difference?" Dodson confronts the contested issues surrounding difference, which often lurk beneath the surface: the probabilistic rather than deterministic relationship between descriptive and substantive representation of women; the contested legitimacy of women representing women; and the disagreement about what it means to represent women. The analysis moves the literature toward a better integrated understanding of how gendered forces at the individual, institutional, and societal levels combine to reinforce and redefine gendered relationships to power in the public sphere. The results can be generalized over time and across settings, are meaningful even in periods when the answer to the question of whether women make a difference seems to be more frequently "no" than "yes," and point to strategies that may bolster the impact of women's presence for substantive representation of women

Laura Hyun Yi Kang,2020-08-14 In Traffic in Asian Women Laura Hyun Yi Kang demonstrates that the figure of Asian women functions as an analytic with which to understand the emergence decline and permutation of U S power knowledge at the nexus of capitalism state power global governance and knowledge production throughout the twentieth century Kang analyzes the establishment suppression forgetting and illegibility of the Japanese military comfort system 1932 1945 within that broader geohistorical arc Although many have upheld the comfort women case as exemplary of both the past violation and the contemporary empowerment of Asian women Kang argues that it has profoundly destabilized the imaginary unity and conceptual demarcation of the category Kang traces how Asian women have been alternately distinguished and effaced as subjects of the traffic in women sexual slavery and violence against women She also explores how specific modes of redress and justice were determined by several overlapping geopolitical and economic changes ranging from U S guided movements of capital across Asia and the end of the Cold War to the emergence of new media technologies that facilitated the global circulation of comfort women stories Minding the Body Ellyn Kaschak,2014-01-27 Support and empower women who are coping with the pain fear and stigma of serious disease Being diagnosed with cancer chronic fatigue syndrome or fibromyalgia is a traumatic event that takes place at a time when the patient is already feeling physically and often emotionally drained Minding the Body combines feminist and social constructionist approaches to offer an intimate look into the ways a therapist can help clients cope with the pain fear and stigma of serious disease Minding the Body offers an alternative to the reductive view of the mind body connection and also examines the potential for growth that such experiences often allow The essays gathered here show how an effective therapist can help the client deal with the painful and difficult emotions that exacerbate illness while learning the emotional and spiritual lessons illness can teach Minding the Body presents both theoretical views and personal accounts of illness including scholarly discussions of the issues involved in autoimmune disorders a therapist s personal experience of chronic fatigue syndrome a personal and professional exposition of a woman's struggles with injury, illness, and managed care co-written by client and therapist suggestions for understanding the social construction of illness and treating disease from a social constructivist point of view narratives reflecting on the change and growth of therapists diagnosed with cancer and other serious illnesses By looking at illness in the context of mind/body/society and medical establishment Minding the Body will help therapists, doctors, nurses, counselors, and clients deal with the grief, disappointment, and frustration of chronic and life-threatening illness

The Psychological and Social Impact of Illness and Disability Arthur E. Dell Orto, Paul W. Power, 2007-04-02 The newest edition of The Psychological and Social Impact of Illness and Disability continues the tradition of presenting a realistic perspective on life with disabilities and then improves upon its predecessors with the inclusion of illness as a major influence on client care needs Articles included represent the best of developing concepts, theory, research, and intervention approaches Classic articles kept from previous editions round out a diversity of viewpoints that will enrich student understanding of what is important in beginning rehabilitation practice Further broadening the scope of this edition is the inclusion of personal perspectives and stories from those living with illness or disabilities These stories offer a glimpse into what it is like to cope day to day with these issues and direct examples of how effective current care models and rehabilitation theories can be Relevant expert articles plus insightful narratives combine to offer a bridge between theory and reality and guide students and professionals in rehabilitation practice closer to their goal of enhancing the quality of life for all individuals

The Politics of Women's Health Susan Sherwin, Feminist Health Care Ethics Research Network, 1998 Examines the real world of women's health status and health care delivery in different countries and the assumptions behind the dominant medical model of solving problems without regard to social conditions This book asks what feminist health care ethics looks like if we start with women's experiences and concerns
