Williams,2013-06-15 There was in the nineteenth century a distinction made between writers and authors Susan S Williams notes the former defined as those who composed primarily from mere experience or observation rather than from the unique genius or imagination of the latter If women were more often cast as writers than authors by the literary establishment there also emerged in magazines advice books fictional accounts and letters a specific model of female authorship one that valorized natural feminine traits such as observation and emphasis on detail while also representing the distance between amateur writing and professional authorship Attending to biographical and cultural contexts and offering fresh readings of literary works Reclaiming Authorship focuses on the complex ways writers such as Maria S Cummins Louisa May Alcott Elizabeth Keckley Mary Abigail Dodge Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Constance Fenimore Woolson put this model of female authorship into practice Williams shows how it sometimes intersected with prevailing notions of male authorship and sometimes diverged from them and how it is often precisely those moments of divergence when authorship was reclaimed by women The current trend to examine women writers rather than authors marks a full rotation of the circle and writers can indeed be the more capacious term embracing producers of everything from letters and diaries to published books Yet certain nineteenth century women made particular efforts to claim the title author Williams demonstrates and we miss something of significance by ignoring their efforts The Collected Letters of Harriet Martineau Deborah Logan,2024-07-31 This five volume set brings together the surviving letters penned by Harriet Martineau the nineteenth century writer and women s rights advocate Throughout her fifty year career Harriet Martineau s prolific literary output was matched only by her exchanges with a range of high profile British American and European correspondents This set focuses on the letters written by Martineau contextualising the correspondence through annotation of the highest standard This book is a unique and highly valuable resource for students of and others interested in the history of feminism The Nathaniel Hawthorne Review ,2001
