Redirection Of Th1 And Th2 Responses:

Redirection of Th1 and Th2 Responses Robert L. Coffman, Sergio Romagnani, 2013-03-09 The two major subsets of CD4 helper T cells designated Th1 and Th2 have quite different patterns of cytokine production and as a consequence have very different roles in immune responses The articles in this volume review both basic and clinical studies of T cell heterogeneity including the mechanisms by which Th1 and Th2 cells develop and maintain their differences in cytokine production the different roles of Th1 and Th2 cells in allergy autoimmunity and infectious diseases the prospects and strategies for therapeutic manipulation of Th1 and Th2 cells and the control of Th1 and Th2 responses by regulatory T cell subsets The volume should give the reader a view of the development and function of Th1 and Th2 cells and the attempts to treat immunological diseases with therapies directed towards altering the Th1 Th2 balance

Holgate,Lanny J. Rosenwasser,2009-11-10 When I entered the field of allergy in the early 1970s the standard textbook was a few hundred pages and the specialty was so compact that texts were often authored entirely by a single individual and were never larger than one volume Compare this with Allergy Frontiers Epigenetics Allergens and Risk Factors the present s volume text with well over 150 contributors from throughout the world This book captures the explosive growth of our specialty since the single author textbooks referred to above The unprecedented format of this work lies in its meticulous attention to detail yet comprehensive scope For example great detail is seen in manuscripts dealing with topics such as Exosomes naturally occurring minimal antigen presenting units and Neuropeptide S receptor 1 NPSR1 an asthma susceptibility gene The scope is exemplified by the unique approach to disease entities normally dealt with in a single chapter in most texts For example anaphylaxis a topic usually confined to one chapter in most textbooks is given five chapters in Allergy Frontiers This approach allows the text to employ multiple contributors for a single topic giving the reader the advantage of being introduced to more than one vi point regarding a single disease

Modern Vaccinology Edouard Kurstak, 2013-11-09. The recent developments in modern vaccinology are mainly based on: i) cloning of microbial genes into recombinant vectors containing genetic information for expression of desired neutralizing immunogens; ii) alternatives of attenuated vectors with deleted genes permitting the insertion of several foreign genes expressing antigens exposed to the host immune system during the abortive replication of such vectors; iii) combined vaccines with the aim to protect against many diseases with a limited number of administrations; iv) evidence demonstrating the ability of animals to respond serologically to DNA injections considered as a potential method of vaccination; v) the possibility to manipulate the immune system with new and improved immunomodulators enhancing the immune response; and vi) new microcarrier systems for particular immunogens or immunomodulators delivery either in a single dose or sustained release and presentation to the immune system for a relevant response. New vaccines being developed are mainly based on viral, bacterial or other vectors modified with genetic engineering technology to possess and express desired antigens for vaccination against single or multiple infections. Existing combined vaccines like diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (DTP) are also experimented with new additional components like recombinant hepatitis B virus surface antigen, inactivated poliovirus and Haemophilus influenzae type b immunogens in order to produce multivalent vaccines. Such types of vaccines permitting the reduction of multiple medical visits is of particular interest to pediatric immunization programs and would benefit especially the developing countries assuring better vaccine compliance with immunization schedules.

Nucleic Acids in Innate Immunity Ken J. Ishii, Shizuo Akira, 2008-05-22. Until recently innate immunity was regarded as a relatively nonspecific system designed to engulf and destroy pathogens. However, new studies show that the innate immune system is highly developed in its ability to discriminate between self and foreign entities. Understanding this mechanism can lead to therapeutic strategies based on manipulation.
