Heartlands of Eurasia Anita Sengupta, 2009-07-16 Heartlands of Eurasia explores how received metageographical knowledge informs the understanding of global processes and is subsequently transformed into geopolitical reasoning with foreign policy implications It provides a detailed examination of writings from both within the region and outside that look into the significance of Halford Mackinder's heritage in the context of a vastly changed world situation In particular it attempts to examine how policy makers and strategic thinkers have used these geopolitical concepts as justification for their policy in the region Finally it attempts an analysis of the extent to which this policy thinking was translated into practice While the study looks into how the vision of the pivotal significance of a vast expanse of land finds its echoes in contemporary narratives it also underlines the very creative ways in which Mackinder's ideas have been reinterpreted in keeping with the changing global dynamics Making use of the way in which the region has been traditionally defined and the way in which the people defined themselves the study brings into focus a debate on the usefulness of region or area based studies that are located in geographical imaginations Anita Sengupta uses this connection to examine the following issues geopolitical imaginations and their relevance in identifying areas in the present context the intersection between how areas are defined from an outsider perspective and how people define themselves the extent to which these definitions have influenced policy and the possibility or feasibility of the development of alternative geostrategic discourses Mackinder himself did not specify the geographical area identified first as the pivot and later the heartland but his ideas were focused on the closed heartland of Euro Asia an area that was unassailable by sea power This study therefore centers its debates around the Eurasian space in general though the focus is on the Central Asian region and Uzbekistan in particular The book is ideal for specialists working on the Eurasian region graduate students interested in geopolitics as well as Eurasian and Central Asian studies and undergraduates studying political science and international relations
