Returning Questions A Dialogical Introduction To Philosophy:

Returning Questions Joseph R. Cronin, Otto R. Piechowski, 2003 The readings presented in Returning Questions A Dialogical Introduction to Philosophy are short clear and direct They are meant to stimulate meaningful dialogue and interactive learning to populations of students who do not have the time energy or background to commit hours of heavy study to a required three hour philosophy course This text presents a broad scope of philosophical issues and primary sources from the history of philosophy with the intent of providing students with a general introduction to significant and relevant questions in philosophy the humanities and the history of thought The Journal of Philosophy, 2003 The Dialogical Spirit Amos Yong, 2015-04-30 Contemporary proposals for Christian theology from post liberalism to Radical Orthodoxy and beyond have espoused their own methodological paradigms Those who have ventured into this domain of theological method however have usually had to stake their claims vis a vis trends in what may be called the contemporary post al age whether of the post modern post Christendom post Enlightenment post Western or post colonial varieties This volume is unique among offerings in this arena in suggesting a way forward that engages on each of these fronts and does so from a particularistic Christian perspective without giving up on Christian theology's traditional claims to universality This is accomplished through the articulation of a distinctive dialogical methodology informed by both Pentecostalism and Evangelicalism one rooted in the Christian salvation history narrative of Incarnation and Pentecost that is yet open to the world in its many and various cultural ethnic religious and disciplinary discourses Amos Yong here engages with twelve different interlocutors representing different ecumenical religious and disciplinary perspectives The Dialogical Spirit thus not only proffers a model for Christian theological method suitable for the twenty first century global context but also exemplifies this methodological approach through its interactions across the contemporary scholarly inter religious and theological landscape American Book Publishing Record, 2003 Dialogical Rhetoric W. Slob, 2013-11-11 Contemporary developments in philosophy have declared truth as such troublesome and not merely gaining access to it In a systematic survey this study investigates what is at stake when truth is given up A historical overview shows how the current problem of truth came about and suggests ways to overcome rather than to repair the problem A key issue resulting from the loss of truth is the lack of normativity Truth provided an alternative understanding of normativity Elaborating on the dialectical shift in logic a dialogico rhetorical understanding of normativity is presented Rather than requiring truth agreement or rationality dialogico rhetorical normativity is the result of a balance of particular standards This type of normativity is shaped within discussions by advancing and accepting arguments and is not located in sets of predetermined rules The result is a small but strong form of normativity If this understanding of normativity is viable one of the central problems of contemporary philosophy the problem of incommensurability can be seen in a different light As a result truth reappears again Surviving the postmodern criticisms it is a matter of accountability rather than of description An Introduction to Dialectics Theodor

W. Adorno, 2017-03-09 This volume comprises Adorno's first lectures specifically dedicated to the subject of the dialectic a concept which has been key to philosophical debate since classical times While discussing connections with Plato and Kant Adorno concentrates on the most systematic development of the dialectic in Hegel's philosophy and its relationship to Marx as well as elaborating his own conception of dialectical thinking as a critical response to this tradition Delivered in the summer semester of 1958 these lectures allow Adorno to explore and probe the significant difficulties and challenges this way of thinking posed within the cultural and intellectual context of the post war period In this connection he develops the thesis of a complementary relationship between positivist or functionalist approaches particularly in the social sciences as well as calling for the renewal of ontological and metaphysical modes of thought which attempt to transcend the abstractness of modern social experience by appeal to regressive philosophical categories While providing an account of many central themes of Hegelian thought he also alludes to a whole range of other philosophical literary and artistic figures of central importance to his conception of critical theory notably Walter Benjamin and the idea of a constellation of concepts as the model for an open or fractured dialectic beyond the constraints of method and system These lectures are seasoned with lively anecdotes and personal recollections which allow the reader to glimpse what has been described as the workshop of Adorno's thought As such they provide an ideal entry point for all students and scholars in the humanities and social sciences who are interested in Adorno's work as well as those seeking to understand the nature of dialectical thinking has traditionally had and ought to have within modern social philosophy and social theory These two considerations are by no means one and the same This selectivity is expressed both by Thomas Krogh s choice of historical writers and in the systematic orientation towards a discussion of the way in which technology is treated in social philosophy or social theories that have been inspired by and reflect philosophy and that move on a relatively high level of abstraction These include those proposed by Gehlen Marx Sartre Habermas and Luhmann
