This interdisciplinary approach explores the interconnection of body, mind, and psyche, offering a masterful tool for restoring balance and healing developmental trauma. BodyDreaming is a somatically focused therapeutic method drawing on the findings of neuroscience, analytical psychology, attachment theory, and trauma therapy. In Part I, Dunlea defines BodyDreaming and its origins, placing it in the context of a dysregulated contemporary world. Part II explains how the brain works in relation to the BodyDreaming approach, providing an accessible outline of neuroscientific theory, structures, and neuroanatomy in attunement, affect regulation, attachment patterns, transference, and countertransference, and the resolution of trauma throughout the body. In Part III, through detailed transcripts from sessions with clients, Dunlea demonstrates the positive impact of BodyDreaming on attachment patterns and developmental trauma. This somatic approach complements and enhances psychobiological, developmental, and psychoanalytic interventions. BodyDreaming restores balance to a dysregulated psyche and nervous system that activates our innate capacity for healing, changing our default response of fight, flight, or freeze, and creating new neural pathways. Dunlea's emphasis on attunement to build a restorative relationship with the sensing body creates a core sense of self, providing a secure base for healing developmental trauma. Innovative and practical, and with a foreword by Donald E. Kalsched, BodyDreaming in the Treatment of Developmental Trauma: An Embodied Therapeutic Approach will be essential reading for psychotherapists, analytical psychologists, and therapists with a Jungian background, arts therapists, dance and movement therapists, and body workers interested in learning how to work with both body and psyche in their practices Playwork Practice at the Margins Jennifer Cartmel, Rick Worch,2020-11-26 Playwork Practice at the Margins explores the circumstances where playwork practice intersects with practice from diverse contexts and settings encompassing disciplines such as health, education, early intervention, and community development. Each chapter focuses on a research project situated in a unique setting or space such as zoos, hospitals, refuges, and rainforests. In these settings, the authors reflect on Playwork Principles and consider these in relation to the theory, research, design, and findings of their project. By presenting research from settings at the margins of traditional playwork the authors use shared values and principles to consider the significance of playwork when embedded in transdisciplinary work The book is underpinned by a model of reflective thinking that is used to examine how playwork practice is intertwined with knowledge from other disciplines With a range of international contributions from both researchers and practitioners this is the ideal text for academics and researchers in the fields of early childhood education allied health community development and social work disciplines as well as human geographers and practitioners in children s services worldwide Книга для викладача.
