Evolution of global agrifood trade and trade policy and implications for nutrition Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2025-02-11 While international agrifood trade is critically relevant for the availability and supply of food across many countries import tariffs are a policy instrument with relatively modest potential to steer consumers towards purchasing more nutritious food Employing a number of newly developed datasets this research project examines patterns and developments in the links between agrifood trade and nutrition and assesses how trade policy shapes food prices The analysis is undertaken at a global level with a focus on the Near East and North Africa NENA region a set of countries which is particularly dependent on agrifood imports The results show that agrifood imports are a critical source of calories macro nutrients as well as vitamins and minerals for most countries in the world On the supply side a small number of countries account for the bulk of globally traded calories and nutrients These findings show that calorie and nutrient availabilities are shaped significantly by global trade With regard to how import tariffs affect the relative prices of foods with different nutritional characteristics econometric estimations suggest that on average import tariffs have only a relatively modest effect on the relative prices of different foods The concentration patterns of caloric and nutrient supply in a small number of supplying countries reinforce calls to diversify global food markets and trade As for trade policy options the modest effects of tariffs suggest that exploring other domestic and trade policy options would be necessary to significantly improve nutritional outcomes

The political economy of food and nutrition policies Per Pinstrup-Andersen,1993-01-01 Few nutritionists and economists fully appreciate how the political environment shapes policy and subsequently affects the relevance of their policy recommendations When governments fail to follow the recommendations of nutritionists and economists and are unable to design and implement cost effective nutrition programs and policies it is often attributed to politics or to lack of political will on the part of decisionmakers Past nutrition planning efforts frequently failed to understand the goals and behavior of the various agents and institutions inside and outside the government that in the final analysis determine whether the planning effort is successful In The Political Economy of Food and Nutrition Policies Per Pinstrup Andersen brings together a group of distinguished authorities to improve the understanding of how nutrition policies are formulated within larger political and economic contexts and how public sector agencies behave with regard to food and nutrition

Small and medium enterprises and nutrition: understanding linkages, seizing opportunities Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2024-04-26 Multiple actors should be mobilized to ensure that agrifood systems help meet nutrition and sustainability objectives Author Among these small and medium enterprises SMEs engaged in the supply of food are of crucial importance as they constitute the bulk of agrifood enterprises in most countries Author However there are still few examples of policies programmes and initiatives aimed specifically at leveraging SMEs due inter alia to the novelty of the debate and to the limited understanding of their specific needs and challenges Author Based on a literature review complemented with FAO s experience in capacity development for SMEs this publication is targeted at programme developers experts and technical advisors to policymakers Author Its objectives are a to improve the understanding of the linkages between topics that are traditionally dealt with separately and b to promote the inclusion of an SME perspective in nutrition and agrifood system policies programmes and strategies Author Strengthening the links between resilience and nutrition Dufour, Charlotte,Kauffmann, Domitille,Marsland, Neil,2014-04-29
