Politics Of Civil Society Building Eur:

The New Politics of European Civil Society Ulrike Liebert, Hans-Jörg Trenz, 2012-08-21 Over the past two decades civil society has played a pivotal role in Europe from the demise of Communist rule to the reunification of Europe followed by the expansion of the single market to the reconstitution of democracy in the enlarged European Union European civil society has emerged as a social space between EU governance and the citizens of the member states populated by non state agents claiming to represent speak for or participate on behalf of the most varied social constituencies in EU decision making This book consolidates European civil society research by re viewing its conceptual normative and empirical analytical foundations With contributors from political science to sociology to law it captures the evolving practices of European civil society that stretch across the national local the European and the global realm Developing an analytical framework that highlights the interplay between civil society building and polity building from above as well as from below within the legal and institutional framework of the EU they examine whether and how civil society can contribute to making democracy work in normative democratic theoretical perspectives This book will be of interest to students and scholars of civil society European politics political science and sociology Civil Society and Activism in Europe William A. Maloney, Jan W. Van Deth, 2010-04-05 This book examines the role of civil society organizations in several advanced European democracies Germany the Netherlands Spain Switzerland and the United Kingdom Specifically the book focuses on how voluntary organizations contribute to civic and democratic health and assesses the impact of different organizational types on social capital Building on Citizenship and Involvement in European Democracies and Social Capital and Associations in Europe 2007 this volume seeks to widen and deepen the analysis by introducing new data on activists and combining it with the organizational data and the population data It evaluates the impact of the organizational context on individual activity profiles and attitudes and values of activists and provides a unique assessment on the contribution that voluntary associations make to civil and democratic society Part One deals with the consequences of associational involvement for several attitudinal and behavioural orientations and Part Two expands the scope of the effects of voluntary associations towards European attitudes This book is essential reading for students and scholars of civil society democracy political participation politics and sociology Civil Society and Governance in Europe William A. Maloney, Jan W. Van Deth, 2008-01-01 The research presented in this book based on new primary data demonstrates that in terms of civil society actors adapting to the European political space the Europeanization process has an uneven development This innovative book integrates top down approaches for the study of relationships within the developing EU multilevel system i e the consequences of Europeanization for civil society at the local level and bottom up approaches i e the consequences of civil society for the process of European integration and democracy in the EU The contributors argue that exploration of these recursive linkages requires a rethinking of the relationships between local national and trans national civil society on the one hand and multi level governance on the other In analyzing the opportunities for civil society associations to contribute to European integration and decision making from various perspectives the following findings are presented amongst others engagement with and confidence in the EU compared to national institutions is relatively weak among associational members party elites play a key gatekeeper role in the European space the EU and interest groups have had limited success in stimulating the development of citizen engagement civil society and social capital in various countries In the rapidly expanding field of research on democratic decision making in Europe this book will be welcomed by academics and scholars alike at postgraduate levels and above Experts working in the field of European decision making such as lawyers and lobbyists who are looking for conclusions based on high quality empirical research will also find much in this book to engage them

Building Civil Society and Democracy in New Europe Sven Eliaeson, 2009-03-26 The European enlargement process culminating in 2004 was as a follow up to die Wende and the implosion of the Russian empire an event of the same magnitude as 1815 and 1919 Like 1918 19 it was an exit into history a momentous event in post Westphalian Europe Even if acceptance of ten new countries was premature it was appropriate to the moment history provided The presence of the New kids on the block meant both problems and prospects The end of the cold war meant the fall of the iron curtain but a mental remnant of the curtain remains in terms of attitudes regarding civility corruption and transparency and expectations for democratic politics Several of the new countries are late children of 1848 For them entering NATO was more important than joining the EU and also preceded EU membership Poland is bigger than the other 2004 countries together and has a heavy historical legacy It is as Germany used to be imprinted by its special path between East and West and fear of being encircled by enemies Although the Building of Civil Society and Democracy in countries in transformation can draw on experiences from the countries already within the EU there is no primrose path for EU integration It is moreover an irony that the new member states as a result of the expectations for post Communist politics build institutions of a kind that are no longer sufficiently efficient for old Europe The new countries became a full scale experiment in rule by experts now by neo liberals instead of Communists A common European public sphere and civil society might emerge but its form remains visible only at the horizon

The Weakness of Civil Society in Post-Communist Europe Marc Morjé Howard, 2003-03-27 Over a decade has passed since the collapse of communism yet post communist citizens are still far less likely to join voluntary organizations than people from other countries Why do post communist citizens mistrust public organizations What explains this pattern of weak civil society And what does this mean for democracy in the region This engaging study addresses these questions with a provocative argument about the enduring impact of the communist experience on its countries and citizens Howard argues that the experience of mandatory participation in state controlled organizations and vibrant private networks during the communist period combined with the disappointment with post communist developments have left most citizens with a lasting aversion to public activities Howard analyzes the findings from over 30 democratic countries on the World

Values Survey and also presents extensive and original evidence from his own research focused on Eastern Germany and Russia

Civil Society in Central and Eastern Europe Sabine, 2014-04-15 As well as promoting debates about liberal democracy the dramatic events of 1989 also brought forth a powerful revival in the interest of the notion of civil society This revival was reflected mainly in two broad tracts of literature The first was primarily focused on the events surrounding the Solidarity movement in Poland and the tumultuous events of 1980-81 The second was concerned with the Velvet Revolutions more broadly Following the events of 1989 there appeared a number of works sharing the common central argument that civil society played a key role in the overthrow of these Communist regimes in 1989 Challenging the centrally accepted wisdom that dissent in totalitarian regimes was representative of civil society Civil Society and Communism posits the argument that the totalitarian public sphere a new theoretical typology presents a more robust and rigorous way by which to understand dissent and opposition in totalitarian Czechoslovakia Poland and the GDR

Armenia and Europe Pål Wilter Skedsmo, 2019-11-14 Armenia receives one of the highest levels of international aid per capita in the Western world and among the highest of the post Soviet states This ethnographic study based on new primary research looks at aid in the South Caucasus and its role in Armenia's relationship with Europe In particular Skedsmo argues that the Aarhus Convention which entitles citizens of Europe to access information and participation in decision making in environmental matters has allowed Armenian citizens to adapt and control the direction of their country's political future in various ways whether through protest activism or legal challenges A new examination of aid and development and the structures these create Europe and Armenia will be an essential case study for scholars of development for regional specialists in the post soviet area especially South Caucasus social anthropologists students of post socialism and development postcolonialism In addition the book will be of interest for practitioners and European policy makers transnational organizations and others involved in development policies and projects in the region

The Building of Civil Europe 1951-1972 Stefanie Pukallus, 2018-11-27 This book argues that early European Commission officials envisaged an integrated civil Europe from the outset Largely overlooked is the fact that between 1951 and 1972 there was a group of European Commission and before that the High Authority officials who wished to build a Civil Europe to sit alongside an economic and political Europe This Civil Europe was it was hoped to become home to a European citizenry equipped with a European civil consciousness that complemented their national and local loyalties To this end these officials pioneered a series of civil initiatives designed to begin the process of building Civil Europe This book analyses three such civil initiatives the building of the first European School the European Community's participation in Expo 58 and the production of the European Community's own documentaries From the start Europe was designed and conceived of in terms of a European general civil public and not solely in terms dictated by economic and political interests
