Energy and Environment Division,1997      Renewable Energy Policy Convergence in the EU David Jacobs,2016-03-23 This book examines the coordination of renewable energy policies in the European Union using an innovative theoretical approach to explain national policy making David Jacobs asks why are national support instruments for electricity from renewable energy sources converging even though the harmonisation of these frameworks at the European level has failed Which causal mechanisms lead to cross national policy similarities And what are the implications for policy coordination in the EU The author traces the evolution of feed in tariffs the most successful and most widely used support mechanism for renewable electricity in Germany Spain and France He reveals increasing cross national policy similarities in feed in tariff design despite the failure of harmonizing instruments at the European level He explains these increasing policy similarities by applying policy convergence theory Policy convergence can occur voluntarily based on transnational communication regulatory competition and technological innovations and these findings have important implications for European policy steering The key to this book is the interrelation of an innovative theoretical concept coordination of policies in the international arena via voluntary cooperation with a very topical empirical research focus the promotion of renewable energies in the EU It will be essential reading for scholars and students of environmental policy comparative politics and European studies      Country Reports ,1998      Renewable Energy Policy in IEA Countries: Country reports ,1997

Renewable Energy Policy in IEA Countries ,1997      Energy Policies of IEA Countries International Energy Agency,2007 This compilation by the International Energy Agency contains a broad analysis of recent trends and an easily accessible overview of energy policy during the last 12 months The broader overview section of the 2006 edition examines trends in energy markets including an analysis of energy demand and supply energy prices and energy related CO2 emissions It highlights key policy trends across member and non member countries on energy security energy market reform climate change mitigation energy efficiency renewables and energy R D The book contains a special chapter on energy efficiency which compares the most successful efficiency policies of member countries on the basis of In Depth Review findings of the past three years It also presents the major findings of the World Energy Outlook 2006 key statistical information and brief summaries of major IEA publications released during the past year      Renewable energy policy in IEA countries OCDE. Agence internationale de l'énergie,1997      Renewable Energy Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development,International Energy Agency,2004 Renewable Energy Market and Policy Trends in IEA Countries reviews the experience of IEA countries after the oil crisis in the 1970s initiated a surge of investments in renewables research and development While use of renewables has grown rapidly they still account for only a small portion of the IEA energy mix

Hydropower bioenergy and geothermal energy are mature technologies that contribute about 5-6% to primary energy supply. Solar, wind and other new renewables have experienced rapid technology development but as yet they represent only a small share. This work examines policies and measures that have been introduced in IEA countries to increase the cost-effective deployment of renewables, reviews the objectives behind these policies and evaluates the results. The aim is to identify best practices in order to assist governments in making future policy decisions.

In recent years African countries have taken great strides in their response to the demand for reliable contractual and institutional forms of doing business and for high quality dispute resolution mechanisms. Modern international arbitration has taken root with certain countries actively embracing modern harmonized arbitral practice and others in the process of change and development. This unprecedented volume assembles for the first time a country-by-country analysis, both practical and insightful, of how arbitration is conducted in 46 African countries, providing essential information about legislative provisions, treaty adherence and arbitral procedure. Contributors include current and former judges, distinguished practitioners, academics and institution builders, all of whom are active in promoting the use of arbitration as a viable means of dispute resolution in Africa. Five sections representing the main regions of the continent, each with a substantive introductory chapter covering the major trends within that region, offer country overviews addressing issues such as the following: adherence to the key arbitration conventions; the modernity of a State's arbitration legislation and its compatibility with the UNCITRAL Model Law; particular features of arbitral practice in that jurisdiction; access to and where available, statistics from local and regional arbitral institutions; significant arbitration-related national case law and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards. A sixth section focuses on Africa-based investor-State arbitration, providing an empirical analysis of the experience and record of African States with investment treaties and investor-State arbitration. Useful tables of intra-African bilateral investment treaties, a list of ICSID proceedings involving African States and other tabular features round out the volume. The book will be welcomed by arbitration practitioners and legal academics everywhere as the essential guiding light in what is rapidly becoming a crucially important area of international arbitration practice.

The energy policies of the Netherlands play an important role in ensuring energy security not only on a national level but in all of north-west Europe. The country's strategic location makes it an important transit and trade hub for natural gas, oil and electricity. Furthermore, it has important natural gas production and a large oil refining industry. To enhance continental energy security, the government takes a leadership role in natural gas and electricity market development, pushing forward important policies to better integrate and harmonise the existing national and regional markets. One of the world's leaders in energy research and development, the Netherlands aims to make a 2% annual efficiency improvement and to lower greenhouse gas emissions by 30% by 2020.

from the 1990 level These objectives will not be easy to achieve To ensure their attainment the Netherlands will need not only well designed policies but also their timely and effective implementation This review analyses the energy challenges facing the Netherlands and provides critiques and recommendations for further policy improvements For example it urges the government to provide policy continuity such as in promotion regimes for renewable energy to underpin a sustainable investment climate It also highlights the need for closer co ordination among national regional and local authorities
