Winning Global Markets Philip Kotler,Milton Kotler,2014-08-06 A new marketing paradigm focuses on the concentrated economic power of 600 global cities City Centered Marketing Why Local is the Future of Global Business is a compelling practical analysis of a new direction of marketing within the context of intensifying urbanization and the shift of global economy from West to East Philip Kotler one of the world s foremost marketing experts and his brother Milton an international marketing strategist explain why the future of marketing must focus on top global cities and their metro regions and not squandered resources on small cities Marketing is city centered activity 600 global cities will contribute 65 percent of the global GDP of 67 trillion by 2025 The top 100 cities will contribute 25 percent of GDP and 440 of these top 600 cities will be in the developing world Top cities have to improve their marketing prowess in compete for the right companies and settling on the best terms By 2025 the vast majority of consuming and middle income households will be in developing regions While New York Los Angeles and Chicago will remain major players because of high per capita GDP and capital and intellectual assets companies will pay more attention to growing city regions in the developing world Multinational businesses must change the culture of their headquarters divisions and branches as well as their value chain stakeholders to take advantage of these market changes The book details the strategies for sustainable growth with topics like Resource allocation in developed versus developing city markets Shifting the focus to city regions instead of central governments The rise of new multinational corporations from developing economies Declining

consumer and business growth in developed cities Cities in China Brazil India and throughout the Middle East and Latin America are rising to become major players in the global marketplace Philip and Milton Kotler argue that an inversion is taking place and top cities are growing economically faster than their national rate of growth These emerging city markets are critical to company growth and City Centered Marketing Why Local is the Future of Global Business provides the vital information and guidelines that companies need to plan accordingly Asia's Credit Markets Florian Schmidt, 2004-04-27 Publisher Description MarkPlus on Marketing , MarkPlus on strategy , 2002 Emerging Urbanity Richard Marshall, 2013-09-05 Discussions on the global economy focus on the hyper mobility of capital the possibility of instantaneous transmission of information and money around the globe the centrality of information outputs to our economic systems and emphasise the neutralisation of geography and of places What is ignored however is that even the most advanced information industries need a material infrastructure of buildings and work processes and considerable agglomeration in order to operate in global markets Further the globalisation of economic activity has brought with it not only a vast dispersal of offices and factories but also a growing importance of central functions to manage and coordinate such worldwide networks of activities The development of global urban projects is one manifestation of this move towards centrality in urban situations These large scale urban projects are the result of governments seeking competitive advantage in the global economy They are critical components of a nation's global infrastructure In the booming economies of the Asia Pacific Rim prior to the Asian Economic Crisis these urban developments were seen as key components of national economic policies In their making they require a conscious effort to arrange material infrastructure and reinforce that there is a role for urban design in this making Emerging Urbanity is an exploration of this role in nine global urban projects in the Asia Pacific Rim
