Abstract

This paper provides an overview of qualitative research to encourage finance researchers to apply a more diverse approach to current research practices. Social science researchers recognize that research questions should determine what research paradigm is best for each study. Imagine the benefits to finance if we expand our empirical sources of data to include what people have to say, which then allows us to explore the complex reasoning behind these conversations. It is the intent of this paper to enhance our current research practices in finance through the use of qualitative methods and to view this approach as an invaluable supplement or prelude to existing practices.

Keywords

Finance, qualitative research

1. Introduction

Some of the best seminars start off with the speaker introducing their research topic by sharing a conversation they had with an influential person such as a market maker, fund manager, chief financial officer (CFO), or other market leader. The speaker could be missing a great research opportunity. If only the speaker had approached this opportunity more formally by doing a qualitative study, there might be many other things discovered that could be the focus of an empirical study. Scientists who conduct clinical trials to see the effect of drugs or compounds on treatment versus non-treatment groups would love to be able to conduct their research more directly. What a physicist would give to be able to ask the atoms, molecules, and compounds what they are doing. In finance we can do this – we can ask the CFO, board members, the market makers, fund

Ji,2024-07-27 This book focuses on the frontier issues in climate finance and aims to develop a general framework to understand the financial pathways towards a successful energy transition. It builds upon the general descriptions of the current status and future challenges towards carbon neutral targets and then bring forward a combination of theoretical and empirical analysis on the critical issues related to climate finance. Estimated by the International Energy Agency IEA trillions dollars of investment in energy sector are needed to achieve net zero emission scenario. It provides a huge opportunity for our economies meanwhile creates considerable challenges to the existing system. Both financing and investment in such an unprecedented scale cannot possibly be satisfied by the current financial architecture which creates demands for restructuring in the financial sector, developing innovative financial instruments, building mechanisms to attract private investment and establishing human resources to facilitate climate financing and investment. This area is essentially interdisciplinary which requires a fundamental reconsideration of standard approaches. Aiming to satisfy the broad interests from both academia and policymakers, the contents of this book range from general discussions on critical issues to advanced statistical analyses on key topics. Authors hope to bring forward a general picture about climate finance and facilitate the demands for both academic research and policymaking. It should also provide a good guidance for graduate students interested in this subject. The main contents of this book are based on solid research outcomes but with clear policy relevance. The book combines finance theory and practices in both financial markets and energy sectors to reflect the complex nature of financing for energy transition. While the materials can provide useful knowledge to policymakers, the book can also inspire new research ideas in the relevant area.

Finance and Investment Colin P. Mayer, Stefano Micossi, Marco Onado, Marco Pagano, Andrea Polo, 2018. Low growth, low investment, insufficient spend on infrastructure, weak bank lending to the corporate sector and funding deficiencies of small and medium sized enterprises are all causes of concern in Europe. To many they point to fundamental problems in the financing of European companies and in Europe's financial systems. Are these concerns valid and do the structure and performance of the financial system lie at their heart? If so, what should be done to address them and have the right policy prescriptions been identified to date? A product of the Restarting European Investment Finance research programme, Finance and Investment: The European Case brings together leading researchers to consider the causes of the persistently low level of investment in Europe. It examines the extent to which the financial system is a contributory factor and identifies possible remedies considering the relation of finance to corporate sector investment, the lending behaviour of banks, the provision of equity financing and the role of public sector institutions, regulation and taxation. Finance and Investment provides one of the most comprehensive and thorough analyses of any financial system undertaken to date. It reflects a large body of research using new and existing data sets, employing advanced empirical tools and exploiting the unique insights provided by the tumultuous events of financial and sovereign debt crises. Together they comprise an exceptional body of knowledge to advance academic thinking and guide policy formulation.
