Multidimensional Geographic Information Science Jonathan Raper, 2000-11-23 The way people normally view a GIS is 2 dimensional a greatly limiting form However as developments occur within the field researchers and practitioners are finding ways to make a GIS 3 dimensional and in some instances even 4 dimensional Being able to view a GIS in more than 2 dimensions greatly enhances its usability This forward looking text looks at the ways in which 3 and 4 dimensional multidimensional GIS can be incorporated into the area in the future using a variety of programming techniques The author of this unique book also discusses current examples and uses of multidimensional GIS in the field and shows the way forward for users in the coming years

Geographic Information Systems for Transportation Harvey J. Miller, Shih-Lung Shaw, 2001 GIS data and tools are revolutionizing transportation research and decision making allowing transportation analysts and professionals to understand and solve complex transportation problems that were previously impossible Here Miller and Shaw present a comprehensive discussion of fundamental geographic science and the applications of these principles using GIS and other software tools By providing thorough and accessible discussions of transportation analysis within a GIS environment this volume fills a critical niche in GIS T and GIS literature

The Green Belt of Europe Andrew Terry, Karin Ullrich, Uwe Riecken, 2006 The Iron Curtain running from the Barents Sea to the Black Sea divided Europe for almost 40 years and no activity was allowed in this forbidden zone When it fell in 1989 it left a strip of land that runs the entire length of Europe and that has remained comparatively undisturbed a green belt The Green Belt initiative aims to integrate this entire strip of land with its key habitats and ecological areas as part of an international network of valuable ecosystems This book provides background information on the initiative reviews current activities in a number of case studies and looks at how the initiative can fit into current and future global efforts to protect European biodiversity

Geographical Information Massimo Rumi, R. McMillan, Henk F. L. Ottens, 1996 Geographical Information is defined as the collection of data on real virtual objects which have a fixed place above on in or beneath the surface of the earth Geographical information involves all information on buildings roads pipelines cabling etc as well as boundaries air corridors topography and postcode areas the information can be administrative and geometric Changes in social and economic interests have caused the emphasis to shift over the years Virtual objects areas postcode areas in particular have attracted more interest in recent years This is closely related to the increased desirability of analysing and presenting policy information within certain spatial limits in which the introduction of Geographical Information Systems GIS and systems like GIS has played a significant role Geographical Information cannot be regarded as the informational side of one policy area Geographical information is not only necessary for the layout and management of space but also for such things as taxation environmental policy water management maintenance and protection of pipeline systems and making maps The volumes address the latest developments with respect to technological innovation scientific progress and advanced professional application in the field of geographical information In addition articles dealing with the state of the art and coming innovations with respect to major fields of GI research and application are included The books cover the following areas of specific interest topics with the current scope of geographical information research geographical information technology geographical information and environment geographical information planning geographical information in urban and regional government geographical information in utilities telecom and private enterprise geographical information education and awareness geographical information in Spain

Governments And Geographic Information I. Masser, 2003-09-02 Modern geographic information systems technology has transformed spatial data handling capabilities and made it necessary for governments to rethink their roles with respect to the supply and availability of geographic information The nature of the relationship between governments and geographic information is explored in this book from a number of different conceptual positions with reference to the experiences of Britain the Netherlands Austria and the United States and particularly with respect to the development of national geographic information strategies The book examines the role that can be played both directly through a variety of policy initiatives and also indirectly because of the extent to which they create the broader institutional context within which these are developed and implemented The discussion is divided into three main parts The first of these considers what is Special About Geographic Information And Evaluates The Notion Of geographic information from four different standpoints as a resource a commodity an asset and an infrastructure The second part presents the findings from four case studies of national geographic information strategies while the final section evaluates these experiences with a view to identifying what general lessons can be learnt from them
