Michael L. Slavkin, 2004-04-02 Across the land communities are questioning the role of schools and the community's expectations of parents, students and teachers. Increasingly, educators struggle to convince administrators, parents, students and community members that teaching strategies have strengthened and that students are improving. Yet teachers consistently share their concerns about the lack of parent and community involvement in education. Parents indicate their desire to improve the connections between the classroom and the community but are unsure how to initiate such relationships. In Authentic Learning, Michael L. Slavkin provides parents and educators the opportunity to understand why best practices, constructivism, student-centered practices, student choice and democratic classrooms are effective because they result in a variety of environmental experiences. Such experiences have often been thought to be the environmental foundation that supports and nurtures a creative and challenged brain, guiding children to think in a variety of ways, providing the flexibility of thought that is critical in the 21st century world. With this text, these two groups will discover ways they can work together to create meaningful learning experiences at home and school. For parents, students and preservice and inservice teachers Revealing Nursing Expertise Through Practitioner Inquiry Sally Hardy, Angie

Titchen, Brendan McCormack, Kim Manley, 2009-07-31 Revealing Nursing Expertise Through Practitioner Inquiry explores and reveals the often hidden workings of expert practitioners. It provides valuable insights into developing practice expertise and how expert nursing practice is a key influence on health care practice. The authors present evidence around the interconnected components needed to facilitate support and enable nurses in their practice settings through a transformational framework used to further develop and refine nursing practice expertise. Part 1 explores the current context of practice expertise and the process of practitioner inquiry. Part 2 examines the evidence for practice expertise using exemplars from the extensive Expertise in Practice Project. This includes perspectives of practitioners developing their expertise in diverse areas of clinical practice as well as of those who facilitate practitioners to develop and articulate their practice expertise. Part 3 explores the development of portfolios of evidence that demonstrate expertise, examines models and approaches to facilitation and provides a toolkit of resources. Revealing Nursing Expertise Through Practitioner Inquiry provides important evidence to support the claim that expert nurses change patients' worlds as well as transforming practice, workplace performance and organisational-wide service developments. Provides a framework for exploring and developing nursing expertise. Enables nurses to articulate their expertise and examine their own practice. Offers practical guidance on facilitating inquiry-based practitioners. Draws on results of the RCN Expertise in Practice project.
