Make A Pact For Success Designing Effective Information Presentations:

Make a PACT for Success Ruth V. Small, Marilyn P. Arnone, 2002 Suggesting that the primary concepts needed to deliver effective presentations can be summarized with the acronym PACT standing for purpose audience content and technique the authors present their model for the design development delivery and evaluation of information presentations They also address two other models they find essential to the process Taylor's value added process and Keller's ARCS model Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Make a PACT for Success Ruth V. Small, Marilyn P. Arnone, 2002-07-23 At one time taking a public speaking course was sufficient to provide the skills necessary for effective presentations Now the Information Age makes the use of information technology mandatory so that presentations are delivered not only through speech but also using electronic communications audio and video media print materials To succeed in today's world individuals must understand the characteristics of information as well as people's information needs not just how to present information Small and Arnone have developed an extraordinarily successful model for professionals and academics the PACT model Purpose Audience Content and Technique which makes it easy to focus on the research selection organization and delivery of information Whether the assignment is public speaking technical writing or web designing the PACT model can be used to integrate the common principles of information science and communication theory This book introduces the reader to three crucial models for the successful design development delivery and evaluation of information presentations An ideal tool for professionals a valuable ally for communications instructors and a necessary resource for college students
