Mesa Verde Ancient Architecture:

Mesa Verde Ancient Architecture Jesse Walter Fewkes, 1999 This collection of three essays by one of the great early twentieth century anthropologists of the American Southwest brings back early research at what is now Mesa Verde National Park Colorado The excavations of the most significant ruins of Cliff Palace Spruce Tree House and the Mummy Lake mounds are reported here Cliff Palace the most impressive ruin at Mesa Verde was discovered in 1888 by Richard Wetherill a local rancher now considered a forefather of Southwest archaeology Fewkes came to Mesa Verde in 1908 soon after the creation of the National Park in 1906 His writings discuss the daily lives of the cliff dwellers their art and their unique building construction styles The foreword provides information on contemporary archaeology at Mesa Verde and puts Fewkes's early research and writings in perspective Ancient Architecture of the Southwest William N. Morgan, 1994-01-01 During more than a thousand years before Europeans arrived in 1540 the native peoples of what is now the southwestern United States and northern Mexico developed an architecture of rich diversity and beauty Vestiges of thousands of these dwellings and villages still remain in locations ranging from Colorado in the north to Chihuahua in the south and from Nevada in the west to eastern New Mexico This study presents the most comprehensive architectural survey of the region currently available Organized in five chronological sections that include 132 professionally rendered site drawings the book examines architectural evolution from humble pit houses to sophisticated multistory pueblos The sections explore concurrent Mogollon Hohokam and Anasazi developments as well as those in the Salado Sinagua Virgin River Kayenta and other areas and compare their architecture to contemporary developments in parts of eastern North America and Mesoamerica The book concludes with a discussion of changes in Native American architecture in response to European influences Defensive Architecture and the Depopulation of the Mesa Verde Region, Utah-Colorado in the Thirteenth Century A.D.

Radosław Palonka, 2011 The thirteenth century A.D. was a time of many changes and reorganization in the ancient Pueblo world in the Mesa Verde region Still unresolved are the causes of the migration of Pueblo people from the Mesa Verde region to the south and southeast in the end of the century The theories most cited and most supported by scientific data include environmental changes increasing conflict and violence social changes and the attraction of a new cult or ideologies from the south However it seems that none of these theories can fully explain the total depopulation of the region One reason often cited for the depopulation of the area is increasing conflict and violence Evidence of conflict is clearly visible archaeologically sites located in places difficult to access defensive buildings and settlement layouts human remains with evidence of a violent death and rock art depicting violent interactions During the thirteenth century A.D. many types of defensive architecture including towers underground tunnels connecting structures in a settlement loopholes and massive stone walls that partly or fully enclosed villages were constructed in the central Mesa Verde region These architectural changes were associated with population aggregation and relocation during the thirteenth century most people probably lived in large settlements situated such that they were difficult to access and easy to defend In many villages water sources were secured within the boundary of the settlement or were at least nearby However it is difficult to determine whether the defensive architecture and defensible locations were not enough of an obstacle against possible attackers as Pueblo Indians emigrated from the Mesa Verde region near the end of the thirteenth century A D into what are now northern and central Arizona and New Mexico

Mahoney,2000-03 Beginning in the tenth century Chaco Canyon emerged as an important center whose influence shaped subsequent cultural developments throughout the Four Corners area of the American Southwest Archaeologists investigating the prehistory of Chaco Canyon have long been impressed by its massive architecture evidence of widespread trading activities and ancient roadways that extended across the region Research on Chaco Canyon today is focused on what the remains indicate about the social political and ideological organization of the Chacoan people Communities with great houses located some distance away are of particular interest because determining how and why peripheral areas became associated with the central canyon provides insight into the evolution of the Chacoan tradition This volume brings together twelve chapters by archaeologists who suggest that the relationship between Chaco Canyon and outlying communities was not only complex but highly variable Their new research reveals that the most distant groups may have simply appropriated Chacoan symbolism for influencing local social and political relationships whereas many of the nearest communities appear to have interacted closely with the central canyon perhaps even living there on a seasonal basis The multifaceted approach taken by these authors provides different and refreshing perspectives on Chaco Their contributions offer new insight into what a Chacoan community is and shed light on the nature of interactions among prehistoric communities
