Method And Meaning In Ancient Judaism Second Series:

Method and Meaning in Ancient Judaism Jacob Neusner, 1981      The Documentary History of Judaism and Its Recent Interpreters Jacob Neusner, 2012-07-10 The result for the history of Judaism of a documentary reading of the Rabbinic canonical sources illustrates the working of that hypothesis It is the first major outcome of that hypothesis but there are other implications and a variety of new problems emerge from time to time as the work proceeds In the recent past Neusner has continued to explore special problems of the documentary hypothesis of the Rabbinic canon At the same time Neusner notes others join in the discussion that have produced important and ambitious analyses of the thesis and its implications Here Neuser has collected some of the more ambitious ventures into the hypothesis and its current recapitulations Neusner begins with the article written by Professor William Scott Green for the Encyclopaedia Judaica second edition as Green places the documentary hypothesis into the context of Neusner's entire oeuvre Neuser then reproduces what he regards as the single most successful venture of the documentary hypothesis contrasting between the Mishnah's and the Talmuds programs for the social order of Israel the doctrines of economics politics and philosophy set forth in those documents respectively Then come the two foci of discourse Halakhah or normative law and Aggadah or normative theology Professors Bernard Jackson of the University of Manchester England and Mayer Gruber of Ben Gurion University of the Negev treat the Halakhic program that Neusner has devised and Kevin Edgecomb of the University of California Berkeley has produced a remarkable summary of the theological system Neusner discerns in the Aggadic documents Neusner concludes with a review of a book by a critic of the documentary hypothesis      Formative Judaism, Second Series Jacob Neusner, 1983      Society, the Sacred and Scripture in Ancient Judaism Jack N.

Lightstone, 2010-10-30 This work explores the relationship between religion social patterns and the perception of the character of scripture in four modes of Ancient Judaism 1 the Jerusalem community of the fifth to fourth centuries B C E ie the Early Second Temple Period 2 the Judaism of the Graeco Roman Diaspora down to the end of the fourth century of the Christian Era 3 earliest rabbinic Judaism in the second century C E in the land of Israel 4 Late Antique Talmudic Rabbinism primarily in Babylonia down to the sixth century of the Christian Era Lightstone attempts not only to describe these perceptions and relationships but also to account for them to explore why scripture should be thus perceived His imaginative approach to the challenging descriptive and theoretical tasks is influenced by literary and form critical methods as well as by the methods and perspectives of social anthropology and sociology of the mind This unique attempt at revising the perception of the character of scripture should arouse the interest of scholars and students of Ancient Judaism

Nomination of John Agresto United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Governmental Affairs, 1987      The Transformation of Judaism Jacob Neusner, 2011-03-31 Jacob Neusner describes analyzes and interprets the transformation of one system of the Israelite social order by a connected but autonomous successor system He characterizes the successive systems classifying the one as philosophical and the other as religious. He explains the categorical account of each and sets forth the outcome of a number of topical studies on the category formations of Rabbinic Judaism with special attention to the social order, politics, philosophy and economics. These systems emerged as 1 autonomous when viewed synchronically, 2 connected when seen diachronically and 3 as a continuous construction when seen at the end of their formative age. In their successive stages of categorical autonomy, connection and finally continuity, the three distinct systems may be classified respectively as philosophical, religious and theological, each one taking over and revising the definitive categories of the former and framing its own fresh generative categories as well. The formative history of Judaism is the story of the presentations and re-presentations of categorical structures. In method, it is the exegesis of taxonomy and taxic systems. Now, after more than two decades, Neusner has decided to review the initial statement. Since the book summarizes ten years of work from 1980 to 1990 on the Rabbinic category formations of social science, politics, philosophy and economics in the setting of the law and theology of Rabbinic Judaism from the Mishnah through the Bavli (200-600 C.E.), it seemed well worth the effort to recapitulate the original work. The revised introduction explains the omission of theology in his category formation: philosophy, religion, theology. Neusner's account of the Bavli produced the decade after this title was completed did not make possible the continuous description of the unfolding of the Rabbinic system. The pattern that appealed to Neusner from philosophy to religion to theology has not yet come to a satisfactory account. In the twenty years Form-Analysis and Exegesis Jacob Neusner, 2012-04-01. Jewish Literacy in Roman Palestine Catherine Hezser,2001 Since Judaism has always been seen as the quintessential religion of the book a high literacy rate amongst ancient Jews has usually been taken for granted Catherine Hezser presents the first critical analysis of the various aspects of ancient Jewish literacy on the basis of all of the literary epigraphic and papyrological material published so far Thereby she takes into consideration the analogies in Graeco Roman culture and models and theories developed in the social sciences Rather than trying to determine the exact literacy rate amongst ancient Jews she examines the various types social contexts and functions of writing and the relationship between writing and oral forms of discourse Following recent social anthropological approaches to literacy the guiding question is who used what type of writing for which purpose First Catherine Hezser examines the conditions which would enable or prevent the spread of literacy such as education and schools the availability and costs of writing materials religious interest in writing and books the existence of archives and libraries and the question of multilingualism Afterwards she looks at the different types of writing such as letters documents miscellaneous notes inscriptions and graffiti and literary and magical texts until she finally draws conclusions about the ways in which the various sectors of the populace were able to participate in a literate society

Chilton,Craig A. Evans,2018-12-10 The Proclamation of Jesus seeks to place Jesus in the context of first century Palestinian Judaism The authors hope to discern the essence of his preaching his concept of the kingdom of God and the place of purity in his teaching and activities Better methods for assessing not simply the authenticity of reported sayings and deeds but for tracing the development of tradition are considered The authors are convinced that most of the Synoptic tradition is authentic but that much of it has been reinterpreted and recontextualized Herein lies the real challenge for those investigating the historical Jesus The Proclamation of Jesus opens up new avenues of study and makes new proposals for understanding Jesus in the context of his place and time
