Messages to the General Assembly Pennsylvania. Governor, 1908 "Wildways." , 1917 The Annual Messages of the Presidents of Liberia 1848-2010 D.Elwood

Dunn, 2011-05-04 Every year since 1848 Liberian presidents have delivered a state of the nation address to the Liberian National Legislature reflecting the various facets of the political social economic and ethno cultural situation of the country Liberia the first and for more than a century the only independent state in Sub Saharan Africa was founded in 1822 by an assortment of American non governmental organizations as an asylum for black Americans Similar to a comprehensive longitudinal study this collection of speeches describes the social and economic development of an African country over a time span of more than a century and a half from 1848 until 2010 As such it represents the first major research contribution to the history of the political system of one of the first countries of the continent to attain independence The speeches illuminate the area of conflict between the autochthonous and the black emigrant populations and also documents the relations with the U S as founding nation and constitutional role model especially in the 19th century The presidents speeches are a rich source of information for gaining a better understanding of Liberia's past and the country's current challenges and future prospects. With The Annual Messages of the Presidents of Liberia 1848-2010, the speeches scattered in various Liberian and American archives and libraries have now for the first time been collected and reconstructed in one single edition. Biographies of the presidents and a scholarly introduction by the editor supplement the 146 speeches. The edition is a valuable source of information on the history and political situation of Africa during the past 163 years. The editor and publisher D. Elwood Dunn teaches political science at Sewanee, The University of the South. From 1974 until 1980 he served in the government of Liberia, becoming a member of the cabinet in 1979. He was editor of the Liberian Studies Journal from 1985 until 1995.

The Last Days of the United States Asiatic Fleet Greg H. Williams, 2018-05-12 After the attack on Pearl Harbor, December 7, American sailors of the Asiatic Fleet, where it was December 8, were abandoned by Washington and left to conduct a war on their own, isolated from the rest of the U.S. naval forces. Their fate in the Philippines and Dutch East Indies was often grim; many died aboard burning ships, were executed upon capture, or spent years as prisoners of war. Many books have been written about the ships of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet, yet few look into the experiences of the common sailor. Drawing on official reports, past research, personal memoirs, and the writings of war correspondents, the author tells the story of those who never came home in 1945.

Captain's Memories Henry Melton, 2014-09-26 Captain Pearce never intended to be a teacher, but the only way she could escape her early retirement on Earth and get back out into the vacuum was to share the human side of the great Terraforming Project to young political appointees hoping to become Fleet cadets. Hiding her old secrets had given her a unique view of the past failures and the ongoing dream that powered the greatest macro engineering task of all: remaking the Solar System into new habitable planets for mankind. Stationed on Ceres, formerly an asteroid, now the second largest moon of Earth and headquarters of the Project, she also gave her the opportunity to pull off a little project of her own if she could play the game before they found her out. Henry Melton has been writing Project stories for magazines and anthologies for decades, and here in one volume are collected old favorites and several new, previously unpublished works spanning from the beginnings of the Fleet as a simple space transport organization through its expansion to become the mover of planets and changer of worlds.

Ancient Egyptian Letters to the Dead Julia Hsieh, 2021-11-15 In Ancient Egyptian Letters to the Dead: The Realm of the Dead through the Voice of the Living, Julia Hsieh investigates the beliefs and practices of communicating with the dead in ancient Egypt through close lexical and semantic analysis of extant Letters. Hsieh shows how oral indicators, toponyms, and adverbs in these Letters signal a practice that was likely performed aloud in a tomb or necropolis and how the senders of these Letters demonstrate a belief in the power and omniscience of their deceased relatives and enjoin them to fight malevolent entities and advocate on their behalf in the afterlife. These Letters reflect universals in beliefs and practices and how humankind past and present makes sense of existence beyond death.

The Behavior of Communicating William John Smith, 2009-06-30 In this book, W. John Smith enlarges ethology's perspective on communication and takes it in new directions. Traditionally, ethological analysis has focused on the motivational states of displaying animals. What makes the bird sing, the cat lash its tail, the bee dance? The Behavior of Communicating emphasizes messages. It seeks to answer questions about the information shared by animals through their displays. What information is made available to a bird by its neighbor's song, to a cat by its opponent's gesture, to a bee by its hive mate's dancing? What information is extracted from sources contextual to these displays? How are the responses to displays adaptive for recipients and senders? What evolutionary processes and constraints underlie observed patterns of animal communication? Smith's approach is deeply rooted in the ethological tradition of naturalistic observations. Detailed analysis of observed displays and display repertoires illuminates the theoretical discussion that forms the core of the book. A taxonomy and interpretative analysis of messages made available through formalized display behavior are also developed. Smith shows that virtually all subhuman animal displays may be interpreted as transmitting messages about the communicator, not the environment, and more specifically that messages indicate the kinds of behavior the displaying animal may choose to perform. The most widespread behavioral messages are surprisingly general, even banal in character, yet they make public information that is not readily available from other sources and that would otherwise be essentially private to the communicator. Taken along with information from sources contextual to the displays, the messages made available may permit responses that are markedly specific. By taking advantage of contextual specificity, a species expands the capacity of its display behavior to be functional in numerous and diverse circumstances. After developing the concept of messages and discussing their forms, the responses made to them, and the functions engendered, Smith turns to the evolution of display behavior, the ways in which acts become specialized for communication, and the nature of the evolutionary constraints affecting the ultimate forms of displays. He revises the traditional ethological concept of displays and, in a final chapter, develops the further concept of formalized interactions. Here he extends the discussion to formal patterns of behavior that, unlike displays, are beyond the capabilities of individual performers. Human nonverbal communication, which is considered from time to time throughout the book, provides the richest examples of communication flexibly structured at this level of complexity.
