Qualitative Enquiry For Rural Development A Review:

Qualitative Enquiry for Rural Development Jon R. Moris, James G. Copestake, 1993 This book is primarily written for managers and administrators of rural development policy and practice in low and middle income countries While their precise information needs are diverse they tend to share a reliance upon an ad hoc combination of formal surveys personal contacts and often hasty informal visits

A Systematic Review of Rural Development Research Neus Evans, Michelle Lasen, Komla Tsey, 2015-04-08 Rapid urbanisation inequalities in income and service levels within and between communities and population and economic decline are challenging the viability of rural communities worldwide Achieving healthy and viable rural communities in the face of rapidly changing social ecological and economic conditions is a declared global priority As a result governments all over the world in both developed and developing countries are now prioritizing rural and regional development through policies and programs aimed at enhancing the livelihoods of people living in rural regions In recognition of the important roles that research can play in rural development a range of systematic literature reviews have rightly examined key priorities in rural development including education gender economic development especially agriculture and health and nutrition see Department for International Development DFID 2011 However none of these works has systematically examined the extent to which rural development as a field of research is progressing towards facilitating sustainable change This book evaluates trends in rural development research across the five continental regions of the world Specifically it assesses the total publication output relating to rural development the types of publications their quality and impact over the last three decades Additionally it evaluates the continental origins of the publications as well as the extent to which such publications engage with issues of sustainability The aim is to determine whether the rural development field is growing in a manner that reflects research and policy priorities and broader social trends such as sustainability Development policy makers practitioners those teaching research methods and systematic literature reviews to undergraduate and graduate students and researchers in general will find the book both topical and highly relevant

Elmendorf, Larry Fisher, Jacquelyn Ross, Brinda Sarathy, Gail Wells, 2012-05-23 Participatory research has emerged as an approach to producing knowledge that is sufficiently grounded in local needs and realities to support community based natural resource management CBNRM and it is often touted as crucial to the sustainable management of forests and other natural resources This book analyses the current state of the art of participatory research in CBNRM Its chapters and case studies examine recent experiences in collaborative forest management harvesting impacts on forest shrubs watershed restoration in Native American communities civic environmentalism in an urban neighborhood and other topics Although the main geographic focus of the book is the United States the issues raised are synthesized and discussed in the context of recent critiques of participatory research and CBNRM worldwide The book s purpose is to provide insights and lessons for academics and practitioners involved in CBNRM in many contexts The issues it covers will be relevant to participatory research and CBNRM practitioners and students the world over Social Capital in the Asia Pacific Yuliani Suseno, Chris Rowley, 2020-05-06 Social capital is broadly conceptualised as consisting of resources and network ties embedded in the social structures and relationships that facilitate beneficial outcomes for the actors within those structures Despite the number of research studies on social capital there have been fewer attempts to examine social capital in the context of service oriented firms particularly in the Asia Pacific This is surprising as the service industry plays an important role in the global services trade transactions and business activities Social capital enables and maintains social relations for business transformation for service oriented firms Indeed it would be unimaginable for any economic activity particularly in service oriented firms to occur without social capital This examination of social capital in the Asia Pacific region provides the context for recognising the cultural social and economic opportunities and challenges of several Asia Pacific countries that can potentially enrich our knowledge and understanding of the region Contributions are drawn from cases based in Thailand Indonesia South Korea China and Australia for relevant application in the areas of social capital and service oriented firms in the Asia Pacific This book was originally published as a special issue of the Asia Pacific Business Review Marx in the Field Alessandra Mezzadri, 2021-02-15 Marx in the Field is a unique edited collection illustrating the relevance of the Marxian method to study contemporary capitalism and the global development process Essays in the collection bring Marx to the field in three ways They illustrate how Marxian categories can be concretely deployed for field research in the global economy they analyse how these categories may be adapted during fieldwork and they discuss data collection methods supporting Marxian analysis

Crucially many of the contributions expand the scope of Marxian analysis by combining its insights with those of other intellectual traditions including radical feminisms critical realism and postcolonial studies The book defines the possibilities and challenges of fieldwork guided by Marxian analysis including those emerging from the COVID 19 pandemic The collection takes a global approach to the study of development and of contemporary capitalism While some essays focus on themes and geographical areas of long term concern for international development like informal or rural poverty and work across South Asia Southern and West Africa or South America others focus instead on actors benefitting from the development process like regional exporters larger farmers and traders or on unequal socio economic outcomes across richer and emerging economies and regions including Gulf countries North America Southern Europe or Post Soviet Central and Eastern Europe Some essays explore global processes cutting across the world economy connecting multiple regions actors and inequalities While some of the contributions focus on classic Marxian tropes in the study of contemporary capitalism like class labour and working conditions agrarian change or global commodity chains and prices others aim at demonstrating the relevance of the Marxian method beyond its traditional boundaries for instance for exploring the interplays between food nutrition and poverty the links between social reproduction gender and homework the features of migration and refugees regimes tribal chieftaincy structures or prison labour or the dynamics structuring global surrogacy Overall through the analysis of an extremely varied set of concrete settings and cases this book illustrates the extraordinary insights we can gain by bringing Marx in the field

Co-teaching and co-research in contexts of inequality Phindile Zifikile Shangase,Daniela Gachago,Eunice Ndeti Ivala,2023-05-09 There has been a recent surge of interest in the concept of co teaching and co research across institutions of HE locally and globally as a response to limited international mobility due to COVID 19 We see co teaching and co research as teaching and research that connects educators and learners across different institutions and different contexts be it across South Africa Africa or the world Co teaching and co research is linked in this book to the term networked learning following the Networked Learning Editorial Collective s emphasis on relationships and collaboration rather than technology and foregrounding our strong commitment to social justice Our collective experiences have shown that co teaching and co research are not easy endeavours especially when they involve differently positioned and differently resourced contexts students and academics While these collaborations are enriching and exciting they need careful support preparation and time for sustained relationship building topics that we find are not necessarily discussed in the literature around co teaching and co research This book is an attempt towards closing this gap in knowledge by providing a range of chapters documenting personal experiences of academics and practitioners engaging in co teaching and co research across the African continent and beyond facilitated by various networked learning tools and technologies Framed by a spirit of sharing and connection the book provides insights into the benefits and challenges of such collaborations affordances of technologies to bridge unequal divides emerging practices of continental collaboration and beyond Additionally the book provides an unusually honest and nuanced view on co teaching and co research across contexts of inequalities foregrounding relationship and community building rather than technology and emphasising the importance of sustained connection and reflection in these collaborations Applying a wide range of critical theoretical frameworks these evidence based but also reflective and reflexive contributions are a unique and important reminder that behind and through our screens we connect as humans who yearn to learn from each other but also need to learn how to learn from each other when we do not share the same world views E-Government
