Individual Quality of Life Charles Richard Boddington Joyce,Hannah M. McGee,Ciaran A. O'Boyle,1999 The rubric Quality of Life first came to the explicit attention of the medical profession a little over thirty years ago Despite the undoubted fact that each one of us has his or her own Quality of Life be it good or bad there is still no general agreement about its definition or the manner in which it should be evaluated Although much has been written about quality of life this work has been largely concerned with population based studies especially in health policy health economics The importance of individual quality of life has been neglected in part because of a failure to define quality of life itself with sufficient care in part perhaps because of a belief that it is impossible to develop a meaningful method of measuring individual variables It is a fundamental belief of the editors of this book that the primary focus of quality of life is must continue to be the individual who alone can define it assess its changing personal significances The individual perspective is of vital importance not only to patients but to their doctors too is more more frequently proposed as the most meaningful measure of outcome in clinical research especially in non remitting or chronic conditions Workers who wish to consider wider aspects of influences on the illnesses suffered by individuals the health care that they receive will find much to stimulate them in the methods of documentation proposed in this book Those mainly concerned with population samples rather than individuals may also find the sensitive methods of investigation proposed here not only to be applicable to their own areas of interest but also rewarding in perhaps unexpected ways Community Quality-of-Life Indicators M. Joseph Sirgy,Don Rahtz,David Swain,2007-07-07 This book is the second in a series covering best practices in community quality of life QOL indicators The

The Conceptual frameworks on Quality of Life Dr. Kasturi Shukla, 2022-01-18 Anything that has to do with people anywhere across the globe has surely something to do with their Quality of Life The concept has been discussed and finds reference right from ancient literature dating back to early Greek philosophers like Socrates 469 399 BC his student Plato 427 428 348 347 BC and Aristotle 384 322 BC and stays on the radar of researchers and policy makers until today Aristotle had written about the nature of happiness and what people require in order to have a good life The concept of QoL still holds a strong place in psychological studies social research as well as policy making because the various national and international bodies like World Health Organization United Nations and many others have a strong focus on improving the QoL of the people The book is a comprehensive compilation of the large number of definitions of QoL multiple underlying theories various concepts derivative models how QoL is essentially linked with the UN s SDGs and the crucial global rankings used for international comparative analysis of QoL As the world is changing fast while recovering from the Covid 19 pandemic there are many changing trends that have an integral role in QoL assessments The book attempts to cover almost all of this in lucid and comprehensible language

A composite index of quality of life for the Gauteng city-region: a principal component analysis approach Talita Greyling, The improvement of the quality of life of all South Africans is high on the agenda at national The National Planning Commission 2012 and regional levels of government The Gauteng Planning Commission 2012 and it is therefore important to develop an instrument that can measure this multi dimensional concept The need therefore exists for a composite index of quality of life with the ability to both track the quality of life of people over time and compare it across different demographic and socio economic groups Such a measure could identify those demographic and socio economic groups with low levels of quality of life and also highlight dimensions that need to be prioritised in order to improve the wellbeing of people In South Africa there are a limited number of quality of life indices and measures of wellbeing Indices that measure wellbeing nationally include the Quality of Life Index of Moller and Schlemmer 1983 the Living Standard Measure LSM Index produced by the South African Audience Research Foundation SAARF 2013 the South African Development Index of the South African Institute of Race Relations 2011 and the Everyday Quality of Life Index Higgs 2007 The following indices measure wellbeing at a regional level the Quality of Metropolitan City Life in South Africa Index Naude et al 2009 the Non Economic Quality of Life Index at Sub National Levels Rossouw Naude 2008 and the Quality of Life Index of the Gauteng City Region Observatory GCRO 2011 Although these quality of life indices make distinctive contributions to the study field the focus of these studies is often to measure only objective or subjective quality of life or only economic or non economic quality of life rather than all of the above Furthermore many of the indices use equal weighting which does not necessarily reflect the priorities of the communities
