Talking Through Reading and Writing Daniel Rose, Christine Walsh, 2020-11-15 In this book you will read many examples of rich literacy conversations between a teacher and his 8th grade students that never would have occurred face to face in the classroom These conversations take place online when 8th graders write to their teacher about the books they're interested in reading and choosing to read independently. Students write about what happens when they read or don't read, how they feel about reading, how they're connecting with characters and ideas, why they don't have enough time to read, and what their reading goals are. And their teacher writes back to them. Every week. After each conversation, you will read some meta-talk that shines a light on what the conversation has taught us about this language learner and how this data is informing our beliefs and practices. Embedded within the chapters are suggested resources: articles, book recommendations, links, websites, blogs, etc. You can follow should you want to read more in that chapter. What these students reveal about their own literacy development, their successes, their challenges, their lives, and how their teacher nudges them along socially, emotionally, and academically, teach us the value and power of one practical, authentic literacy tool: the Reading Conversation Journal.

Reading Reasons Kelly Gallagher, 2023-10-10. In Reading Reasons, Motivational Mini-Lessons for Middle and High School, author and teacher Kelly Gallagher offers a series of mini-lessons specifically tailored to motivate middle and high school students to read and, in doing so, to help them understand the importance and relevance reading will take in their lives. This book introduces and explains in detail nine specific real-world reasons why students should be readers. The book contains 40 practical, classroom-tested and reproducible mini-lessons that get to the heart of reading motivation and that can be used immediately in English and other content area classrooms. These easy-to-use motivational lessons serve as weekly reading booster shots that help maintain reading enthusiasm in your classroom from September through June. The mini-lessons, ranging from 5 to 20 minutes in length, hit home with adolescents and, in turn, enable them to internalize the importance reading will play in their lives. Rather than telling students reading is good for them, the lessons in this book show them the benefits of reading.

Allison takes us into her own unique brand of reading workshop, providing the finest road map for teachers. Ultimately, what Allison communicates is that to help students read fiction and nonfiction to refine their knowledge of genre, structure, and reading strategies, we must engage in conversations with students that lead them to independence. Laura Robb, Author of Teaching Middle School Writers. Students need language arts classrooms where the shelves are filled with engaging fiction and nonfiction texts, and where their teacher's main responsibility is to support their growth as readers. They deserve to be respected and supported as they work their way through self-selected texts. Nancy Allison shows how to provide the choice adolescents crave with the guidance they need, and she does this all with instructional and organizational strategies that make this infinitely manageable. In describing how to teach middle school students to read widely and well, Nancy presents the daily routines of an effective reading workshop, with ideas for developing a robust classroom library, tips for cultivating independent readers, and matching students to just-right books. Her unique brand of desk-side conferences, with examples of how they can be used to differentiate instruction and motivate disengaged readers, strategies for teaching
