Introduction to Critical Reading

When you write assignments at University, it is necessary to provide your reader with a convincing argument. You are trying to present an argument that your answer is the correct one, you need to convince the reader of this. One way of convincing or persuading your reader is to present them with good evidence to back up your argument.

Critical reading is an essential part of the information gathering process that is required to create an academically sound assignment. At its most basic level, critical reading involves not taking for granted anything you read. Whenever you read a journal article, or other piece of text, you need to be convinced by the author's argument.

An argument can be defined as a 'series of statements intended to establish a definite proposition' (Monty Python, 1972). The series of statements that an author delivers in their text forms the basis of the article. Each of these statements should be accompanied by relevant evidence to back it up. You need to decide whether or not the evidence is sufficient to convince you of the point the author is making.

Where to Begin

A good place to start is to try and identify why the article was written. The author of an article will have a reason for writing it. This may be to present research findings, or to give an opinion on someone else's research, it may be to inform and audience about some topic they feel is important or interesting, it may be to try and sell something, it may be in order to raise awareness or debate.

Having identified why the article was written, you need to consider whether or not there is an element of bias in the article. Some element of bias is almost inevitable, whenever anyone writes anything they tend to write from their point of view, and that point of view could be seen as an element of bias. If there is a strong element of bias, you may wish to consider finding an alternate point of view to balance out the arguments.

Look at the Evidence

Next try looking at the author's conclusions. Read the article with these conclusions in mind and see if you think the author has offered enough evidence to support them. The author will give evidence to support their conclusions. This evidence may be data from research, or supporting evidence from other authors' research, or a mix of both. Part of reading critically is to look at the argument and the evidence and decide if one does indeed justify the other.

Literary modernism's first readers often complained that difficulty was running rampant in literature that art had become a plague of unintelligibility. Diepeveen argues that the simultaneous appearance of modernism and discussion about difficulty was not coincidental; difficulty allowed modernism to rise to the status of high art and it was fundamental to how modernism shaped the canon not only of twentieth-century literature but of the literature that preceded it. He argues that modernism can be best understood as the moment when knowing how to maneuver through difficult art became the central sign of one's ability to participate in high culture.

Robert Bridges Lee Templin Hamilton, 1991 Robert Bridges poet laureate of England from 1913 to 1930 is an important cultural link between the Victorian Age and the modern period. This bibliography updates and expands George McKay's A Bibliography of Robert Bridges 1933 and is the first gathering of reviews, articles, essays, books, and other scholarly notes about Bridges.

Love, Poetry, and Immortality: Luminous Insights of the World's Great Thinkers William Gerber, 2022-07-11 This book explores and illustrates the individuating characteristics and the interrelationships of love poetry and literary immortality such as immortality that is as writers may win in the sense of being long remembered and appreciated by future readers. From the book's numerous quotations of glittering literary passages it is evident that love is often expressed in poetry and that many authors, especially those writing about love, have expressed the winsome hope that their works would be greatly cherished by later generations. Part One of the book illustrates by passages of matchless poetry the joys and perils of love and other outstanding features of love. Part Two outlines the history of expressions by writers in many cultures of their confidence or hope that their works will make them immortal.

From Outlaw to Classic Alan Golding, 2009-08-26 From Outlaw to Classic presents a sweeping history of the forces that have shaped and continue to shape the American poetry canon. Students, scholars, critics, and poets will welcome this enlightening and impressively documented book. Recent writings by critics and theorists on literary canons have dealt almost exclusively with prose. Alan Golding shows that like all canons, those of American poetry are characterized by conflict. Choosing a series of varied but representative instances, he analyzes battles and contentions among poets, anthologists, poetry magazine editors, and schools of thought in university English departments. The chapters present a history of American poetry anthologies, compare competing models of canon formation, the aesthetic poet-centered and the institutional critic-centered, discuss the influence of the New Critics emphasizing their status as practicing poets, their anti-nationalist reading of American poetry, and the landmark textbook Understanding Poetry by Cleanth Brooks and Robert Penn Warren, examine the canonizing effects of an experimental little magazine. Origin traces how the Language poets address in both their theory and their method the canonizing institutions and canonical assumptions of the age.

A Half-century of Eliot Criticism Mildred Martin, 1972 Listing and commenting on almost 2700 items, the work provides the only annotated bibliography of a major contemporary author that is virtually complete. Includes three indexes.
