Re A (conjoined twins) [2000] HRLR 721

Facts

The parents of conjoined twins, M and J, appealed against a decision to allow an operation to surgically separate them which would result in the death of M. M had severe brain abnormalities, no lungs and was supplied with blood by her sister. J however was normally functioning in all relevant respects. At first instance the judge held that allowing the operation would be in the best interests of both children on the basis that it would allow J a relatively normal life and would prevent further suffering to M as J grew. It was held, on the basis of [Airedale NHS Trust v Bland \[1993\] AC 789](#), that the death of M could be justified by analogy to a doctor removing life sustaining treatment from a patient with no hope of recovery.

Issues

The parents appealed on the basis that the judge had erred in finding that the operation was in the best interests of both children. The Court of Appeal was asked to consider whether this was the case, but addressed both this and the result of liability should the operation proceed (whether necessity would provide a defence).

Decision / Outcome

It was held that

(1) whilst the views of the parents should be given significant respect, the court must address the matter purely on the welfare of the children.

(2) In this respect, the trial judge had erred in suggesting that the separation would be of benefit to both children because all life had equal value. M's life was as valuable as J's in these circumstances and the operation could not therefore, be in her best interest.

(3) The court was then required to balance the interests of the children against one another and concluded that the balance fell in favour of J.

(4) The operation would not constitute murder because the three elements required to raise a defence of necessity were present:

-(a) the act was required to avoid an irreparable evil;

Keppel, William J. Birnes, 2003-08-20 Publisher Description Making Murder Public K. J. Kesselring, 2019-01-31 Homicide has a history In early modern England that history saw two especially notable developments one the emergence in the sixteenth century of a formal distinction between murder and manslaughter made meaningful through a lighter punishment than death for the latter and two a significant reduction in the rates of homicides individuals perpetrated on each other Making Murder Public explores connections between these two changes It demonstrates the value in distinguishing between murder and manslaughter or at least in seeing how that distinction came to matter in a period which also witnessed dramatic drops in the occurrence of homicidal violence Focused on the politics of murder Making Murder Public examines how homicide became more effectively criminalized between 1480 and 1680 with chapters devoted to coroners inquests appeals and private compensation duels and private vengeance and print and public punishment The English had begun moving away from treating homicide as an offence subject to private settlements or vengeance long before other Europeans at least from the twelfth century What happened in the early modern period was in some ways a continuation of processes long underway but intensified and refocused by developments from 1480 to 1680 Making Murder Public argues that homicide became fully public in these years with killings seen to violate a king's peace that people increasingly conflated with or subordinated to the public peace or public justice Honolulu Homicide Gary A. Wagner, 2015-11-03 Rick Montoya, an American translator travelling through Italy, tries to spend his days reveling in art but soon finds himself wrapped up in a scandal Wrapping up an interpreter job in Bassano del Grappa at a conference on artist Jacopo da Bassano, Rick Montoya looks forward to exploring the town And it would be fun to look into the history of two long missing paintings by the master, a topic that caused the only dust-up among the normally staid group of international scholars attending the seminar Bassano has much to offer to Rick, the tourist, starting with its famous covered bridge, an ancient castle, and several picturesque walled towns within striking distance He also plans to savor a local cuisine that combines the best of Venice with dishes from the Po Valley and the surrounding mountains These plans come to a sudden halt when one of the seminar's professors turns up dead Rick is once again drawn into a murder mystery, this time with a pair of local cops who personify the best and the worst of the Italian police force At the same time, he's willingly pulled into a relationship with Betta Innocenti, the daughter of a local gallery owner who is equally intrigued by the lost paintings They quickly realize that the very people who might know the story are also the main suspects in the murder, and that someone not above resorting to violence is watching their every move In David P.
