Millard, 2013-02-01 Because this book's main objective is to foster and promote student development it should appeal to those who advise counsel and teach undergraduate and graduate students particularly those in psychology education and other social sciences Along with a plethora of stimulating ideas for practice and research the book contains the results of research having immediate applications to students educational and career direction needs Readers will find more than 90 articles in this book distributed across three significant challenges to students development the academic occupational and personal Further the material presented has been organized around three distinct approaches to these challenges advising career development and field placement activities The source for these articles is the official journal Teaching of Psychology of Division Two of the American Psychological Association

Attachment Theory Applied Mario Mikulincer, Phillip R. Shaver, 2023-06-20 In this compelling book prominent investigators Mario Mikulincer and Phillip R Shaver review the state of the science of attachment based interventions in psychotherapy and beyond They critically evaluate a range of programs that aim to strengthen parent child couple and therapist client relationships The theoretical and empirical underpinnings of each intervention are examined as are specific techniques used to enhance felt security and foster personal growth The book also looks at evidence based interventions outside the mental health domain including programs that target teacher student relationships and academic performance Looking to the future the authors discuss emerging applications of attachment theory in medicine and health care management and organizational behavior and group and intergroup processes See also the related work from Mikulincer and Shaver Attachment Theory Expanded Security Dynamics in Individuals Dyads Groups and Societies National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1973 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70

What we learn and when we learn it: sensitive periods in development Etienne De Villers-Sidani, Virginia Penhune, 2014-11-21 The impact of training or experience is not the same at all points in development Children who receive music lessons or learn a second language before age 7 8 are more proficient as adults Early exposure to drugs or trauma makes people more likely to become addicted or depressed later life Rat pups exposed to specific frequencies from 9 13 days post partum show expanded cortical representations of these frequencies Young birds must hear and copy their native song within 1 2 months of birth or they may never learn it at all These are examples of sensitive periods developmental windows where maturation and specific experience interact to produce differential long term effects on the brain and behavior While still controversial evidence for the existence of sensitive periods has grown as has our understanding of the underlying mechanisms of brain plasticity Behavioral evidence from studies of language psychopathology or vision in humans has been complemented by evidence elucidating molecular gene and hormonal mechanisms in animals It has been proposed that sensitive periods can be both opened and closed by specific experience and that there are multiple overlapping sensitive periods that occur through out development as functions come on line It is also likely that experience dependent behavioral or brain plasticity accrued during one sensitive period can serve as a scaffold on which later experience and plasticity can build Based on current knowledge there are a number of broad questions and challenges to be addressed in this domain these include generating new information about the neurobiological mediators of structural and functional changes proposing models of brain development that will better predict when sensitive periods should occur and what functions are implicated investigation of the interaction between experience during a sensitive period and pre existing individual differences and the relationship between experience during a sensitive period and on going experience The goal of this Research Topic is to bring together scientists in different fields whose work addresses these issues including animal and human developmental neuroscience language and cognitive development education developmental psychopathology and sensory neuroscience
