The New Latino Studies Reader Ramon A. Gutierrez, Tomas Almaguer, 2016-08-23 The New Latino Studies Reader is designed as a contemporary updated multifaceted collection of writings that bring to force the exciting necessary scholarship of the last decades. Its aim is to introduce a new generation of students to a wide ranging set of essays that helps them gain a truer understanding of what it is like to be a Latino in the United States. With the reader, students explore the sociohistorical formation of Latinos as a distinct panethnic group in the United States, delving into issues of class formation, social stratification, racial, gender, and sexual identities, and politics and cultural production. And while other readers now in print may discuss Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, Cubans, and Central Americans as distinct groups with unique experiences, this text explores both the commonalities and the differences that structure the experiences of Latino Americans. Timely, thorough, and thought provoking, The New Latino Studies Reader provides a genuine view of the Latino experience as a whole.

Street Vending in the Neoliberal City Kristina Graafland, Noa Ha, 2015-10-01 Examining street vending as a global urban and informalized practice found both in the Global North and Global South, this volume presents contributions from international scholars working in cities as diverse as Berlin, Dhaka, New York City, Los Angeles, Calcutta, Rio de Janeiro, and Mexico City. The aim of this global approach is to repudiate the assumption that street vending is usually carried out in the Southern hemisphere and to reveal how it also represents an essential and constantly growing economic practice in urban centers of the Global North. Although street vending activities vary due to local specificities, this anthology illustrates how these urban practices can also reveal global ties and developments.

Beyond the Immigrant Enclave Susan K. Wierzbicki, Susan K. Brown (Sociologist), 2004 Immigrant communities even poor ones are often portrayed as solidary and supportive Wierzbicki examines the presence and homogeneity of ties among the foreign and native born of different ethnic groups She finds that the foreign born consistently report fewer ties than the native born in part because of less education or shorter duration of residence The foreign born also have more ethnically homogeneous ties even when they live outside enclaves and in wealthier areas This finding has implications for theories of assimilation or incorporation For lack of network data previous examination of assimilation has often relied on patterns of residential settlement rather than actual social ties This study indicates that the foreign born may assimilate spatially but not socially
