Making New Nepal Amanda Thérèse Snellinger, 2018-04-03 One of the most important political transitions to occur in South Asia in recent decades was the ouster of Nepal's monarchy in 2006 and the institution of a democratic secular republic in 2008 Based on extensive ethnographic research between 2003 and 2015 Making New Nepal provides a snapshot of an activist generation's political coming of age during a decade of civil war and ongoing democratic street protests Amanda Snellinger illustrates this generation's entrance into politics through the stories of five young revolutionary activists as they shift to working within the newly established party system She explores youth in Nepali national politics as a social mechanism for political reproduction and change demonstrating the dynamic nature of democracy as a radical ongoing process

Making New Zealand's Pop Renaissance Michael Scott, 2016-05-13 Since the early 2000s New Zealand has undergone a pop renaissance Domestic artists sales airplay and concert attendance have all grown dramatically while new avenues for kiwi pop exports emerged Concurrent with these trends was a new collective sentiment that embraced and celebrated domestic musicians In Making New Zealand's Pop Renaissance Michael Scott argues that this revival arose from state policies and shows how the state built market opportunities for popular musicians through public private partnerships and organizational affinity with existing music industry institutions New Zealand offers an instructive case for the ways in which after neo liberal states steer and coordinate popular culture into market exchange by incentivizing cultural production Scott highlights how these music policies were intended to address various economic and social problems Arriving with the creative industries discourse and policy making politicians claimed these expanded popular music supports would facilitate sustainable employment and a sense of national identity Yet popular music as economic and social policy presents a paradox the music industry generates commercial failure and thus requires a large unattached pool of potential talent Considering this feature Scott analyses how state programs induced an informal economy of proto pop production aimed at accessing competitive state funding while simultaneously encouraging musicians to adopt entrepreneurial subjectivities In doing so he argues New Zealand s music policies are a form of social policy that unintentionally deploy hierarchical structures to foster social inclusion amongst growing numbers of creative workers

Making New York Dominican Christian Krohn-Hansen,2012-12-18 Large scale emigration from the Dominican Republic began in the early 1960s with most Dominicans settling in New York City Since then the growth of the city s Dominican population has been staggering now accounting for around 7 percent of the total populace How have Dominicans influenced New York City And conversely how has the move to New York affected their lives In Making New York Dominican Christian Krohn Hansen considers these questions through an exploration of Dominican immigrants economic and political practices and through their constructions of identity and belonging Krohn Hansen focuses especially on Dominicans in the small business sector in particular the bodega and supermarket and taxi and black car industries While studies of immigrant business and entrepreneurship have been predominantly quantitative using survey data or public statistics this work employs business ethnography to demonstrate how Dominican enterprises work how people find economic openings and how Dominicans who own small commercial ventures have formed political associations to promote and defend their interests The study shows convincingly how Dominican businesses over the past three decades have made a substantial mark on New York neighborhoods and the city s political economy Making New York Dominican is not about a Dominican enclave or a parallel sociocultural universe It is instead about connections between Dominican New Yorkers economic and political practices and ways of thinking and the much larger historical political economic and cultural field within which they operate Throughout Krohn Hansen underscores that it is crucial to analyze four sets of processes the immigrants forms of work their everyday life their modes of participation in political life and their negotiation and building of identities Making New York Dominican offers an original and significant contribution to the scholarship on immigration the Latinization of New York and contemporary forms of globalization
