Making Of The Modern Child:

The Making of the Modern Child Andrew O'Malley, 2004-06-01 This book explores how the concept of childhood in the late 18th century was constructed through the ideological work performed by children's literature as well as pedagogical writing and medical literature of the era Andrew O'Malley ties the evolution of the idea of the child to the growth of the middle class which used the figure of the child as a symbol in its various calls for social reform

Making Modern Girls Abosede A. George, 2014-11-15 In Making Modern Girls Abosede A. George examines the influence of African social reformers and the developmentalist colonial state on the practice and ideology of girlhood as well as its intersection with child labor in Lagos, Nigeria. It draws from gender studies, generational studies, labor history, and urban history to shed new light on the complex workings of African cities from the turn of the twentieth century through the nationalist era of the 1950s. The two major schemes at the center of this study were the modernization project of elite Lagosian women and the salvationist project of British social workers. By approaching children and youth specifically, girl hawkers as social actors and examining the ways in which local and colonial reformers worked upon young people, the book offers a critical new perspective on the uses of African children for the production and legitimization of national and international social development initiatives. Making Modern Girls demonstrates how oral sources can be used to uncover the social history of informal or undocumented urban workers and to track transformations in practices of childhood over the course of decades. George revises conventional accounts of the history of development work in Africa by drawing close attention to the social welfare initiatives of late colonialism and by highlighting the roles that African women reformers played in promoting sociocultural changes within their own societies

Making modern mothers Rachel Thomson, Mary Jane Kehily, Lucy Hadfield, Sue Sharpe, 2011-06-22 What does motherhood mean today? Drawing on interviews with new mothers and intergenerational chains of women in the same family, this exciting and timely book documents the transition to motherhood over generations and time. Exploring amongst other things the trend to later motherhood and the experience of teenage pregnancy, a compelling picture emerges. Becoming a mother is not only a profound moment of identity change but also a site of socio-economic difference that shapes women's lives

Making Modern Mothers Heather Paxson, 2004-02-12 In Greece, women speak of mothering as within the nature of a woman. But this durable association of motherhood with femininity exists in tension with the highest incidence of abortion and one of the lowest fertility rates in Europe. In this setting, how do women think of themselves as proper individuals, mothers, and Greek citizens? In this anthropological study of reproductive politics and ethics in Athens, Greece, Heather Paxson tracks the effects of increasing consumerism and imported biomedical family planning methods, showing how women's nature is being transformed to meet crosscutting claims of the contemporary world. Locating profound ambivalence in people's ethical evaluations of gender and fertility control, Paxson offers a far-reaching analysis of conflicting assumptions about what it takes to be a good mother and a good woman in modern Greece, where assertions of cultural tradition unfold against a backdrop of European Union integration economic struggle and national demographic anxiety over a falling birth rate

Years John Edward Anderson, Florence Laura Goodenough, 1929 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2009 Making Modern Meals Amy B. Trubek, 2017 Home cooking is crucial to our lives but it is not necessary to our survival. Over the past century it has become an everyday choice even though it is no longer an everyday chore. By looking closely at the stories and practices of American home cooks witnessing them in the kitchen and at the table, Amy B. Trubek reveals our episodic but also engaged relationship to making meals. Making Modern Meals explores the state of American cooking across all its varied practices, whether cooking is considered a chore, a craft, or a creative process. Trubek challenges current assumptions about who cooks, who doesn't cook, and what this means for culture, cuisine, and health. Contending that cooking has changed in the past century, she locates, identifies, and discusses the myriad ways Americans cook in the modern age. In doing so, she argues that changes in making our meals, from shopping to cooking to dining, have created new cooks, new cooking categories, and new culinary challenges. Provided by publisher Modern Child Psychology Agatha H.

Bowley, 2025-04-30 First published in 1948, Modern Child Psychology intends to give a summarised account of the most important work on child psychology back in the 1940s. A vast amount of careful research on the problems and the progress of development has been undertaken, and much valuable data obtained. Agatha Bowley has attempted to outline, in non-technical language, the most important findings of the psychoanalytic school. The discoveries of psychoanalysis have had far-reaching and revolutionary effects on our methods of bringing up children. Probably the contributions of Freudian psychology have done more to change the outlook of child psychology than any other school of thought. This important historical reference work will be of interest to students of developmental psychology, child psychology, and psychology in general. Child

Welfare, 1928 Children's Voices from the Past Kristine Moruzi, Nell Musgrove, Carla Pascoe Leahy, 2019-04-23 This book explores a central methodological issue at the heart of studies of the histories of children and childhood. It questions how we understand the perspectives of children in the past and not just those of the adults who often defined and constrained the parameters of youthful lives. Drawing on a range of different sources, including institutional records, interviews, artwork, diaries, letters, memoirs, and objects, this interdisciplinary volume uncovers the voices of historical children and discusses the challenges of situating these voices and interpreting juvenile agency and desire. Divided into four sections, the book considers children's voices in different types of historical records, examining children's letters and correspondence as well as multimedia texts such as film, advertising, and art, along with oral histories and institutional archives. Modern
